11th B52 IS LOST ... Bombers Observe Christmas Holiday

Saigon (UPI) — American bombers which had pounded Hanoi for seven days took a Christmas holiday, informed sources said Sunday, but not before the 11th B52 was shot down flying the heaviest raids of the war over North Vietnam.

Officially, the U.S. Command refused comment on all questions concerning a temporary bombing halt and the command was not expected to say anything until the next scheduled briefing on Tuesday.

Informed sources indicated the bombing had at least been halted in the Hanoi-Haiphong area, which was put off limits Oct. 23 to show American goodwill in attempts to work out a peace settlement.

Both North and South Vietnamese ground troops have declared 24-hour truces, but there was at least one report of fighting.

Nixon ordered full-scale bombing of the North resumed last Monday and since then, American warplanes have been pounding the area in around-the-clock raids.

Earlier, the U.S. Command said another B52 crashed because of damage from North Vietnamese fire and a smaller F4 fighter-bomber was downed near Haiphong.

The B52 crashed in Laos and at least one crewman was missing. It was the 11th B52 shot down since President Nixon ordered resumption of the bombing in the Hanoi-Haiphong area Dec. 18.

The two Navy crewmembers of the F4 Phantom ejected into the Tonkin Gulf and were rescued. The Command said the cause of the downing was unknown.

At least 10 other Americans were reported missing in Laos after their AC130 Spectre gunship was shot down. The Command said the plane, which normally carries a crew of 12, was shot down Thursday. Two of the men were rescued.

In Saigon, war weary residents staged their biggest celebration in at least 16 years Sunday, pouring into the streets and continuing festivities well beyond the usual 11 p.m. curfew.

UPI reporter Matt Franjola said South Vietnamese and Communist troops were fighting near fire base November not far from Kontum, 260 miles north of Saigon, at least one hour after the North Vietnamese truce was scheduled to go into effect at midnight Dec. 24 EDT. The South Vietnamese truce started at 5 a.m. EDT.

Capital Rocked By Earthquakes

... Death Toll Mounts

Managua, Nicaragua (AP) — Authorities ordered the evacuation Sunday of this Central American capital, reduced to shambles by earthquakes that killed up to 10,000 persons.

Minor aftershocks stirred weakened structures still standing in the city which was 70% destroyed by quakes and resulting fires. Scarce water was feared in danger of contamination.

The government radio, operating on an emergency generator, officially estimated that 5,000 to 10,000 of the city's 300,000 residents were killed, but no one could give a more exact figure. Rescue workers searched the rubble for bodies and survivors.

"This is a terrible catastrophe," Gen. Anastasio Somoza, the country's strongman leader, told a newsmen.

Scores of mercy flights with help and supplies from the United States and other countries have been made to Managua since early Saturday, when the strongest quake hit.

Somoza said President Nixon called him Sunday morning to express condolences.

"We are greatly appreciative of the U.S. assistance and the U.S. help, but we need more than just treating the people," Somoza said. Referring to Nixon, he added: "I'd like him to help us rebuild the capital."

People poured out of Managua on foot, on horses and mules, and some in buses. A gasoline shortage limited motor transportation.

The U.S. Army sent a demolition team with a ton of explosives to blast dangerous structures.

Some buildings were so shaky that vibrations from passing trucks brought them down.

In the streets, national guard patrols had orders to shoot looters on sight.

At the city's damaged central hospital, patients lay on the ground in bloodstained sheets, bottles of plasma hung from tree branches and surgeons operated on a makeshift table in the open air.

The most destructive quake was about 12.40 a.m. Saturday.

"It didn't take long until terrible fires lit the whole town," said Ricardo Gomez, a Colombian soccer coach working in Nicaragua. "Soon the gasoline blasts started and the sky was lit as if by fireworks."

"We saw heroic scenes, such as a man with his bloody face and burned arms rescuing six of his children," Uriel Gutierrez, an ambulance driver who helped take the injured to makeshift hospitals, described one of many deaths scenes.

"There were about 80 persons dancing in the fashionable Plaza cabaret. All of them were killed. Couples were found together as if still dancing, and some musicians still had their instruments with them."

U.S. Ambassador Turner B. Shelton's secretary, Rosemarie Orlich, 34, of Philadelphia, died in her demolished apartment.

An American survivor, Vera Hernandez of San Jose, Calif., spent six hours trapped in the ruins of Gran hotel before she was helped out.

At least 42,000 pounds of supplies from Panama were flown out Saturday.

A 24-bed hospital from McDill Air Force Base, Fla., was flown Saturday to Managua, and a 100-bed evacuation hospital is to be transported on Christmas Day from Ft. Hood, Tex.

At least 145 men of a U.S. Army engineers outfit were standing by to be flown to the stricken city if needed to help in clearing rubble.

Already in Managua were 67 U.S. military personnel, including medical, surgical, sanitation and supply experts.

School Aid Support Linked To Property Tax Relief

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

Most state senators are prepared to support an increase in state financial support for local schools, but they will insist on some guarantee of local property tax relief.

Legislators participating in a survey by The Star generally expressed a willingness to transfer more responsibility for school support from the property tax base to state sales-income tax revenue.

But, in the words of Sen. Fred Carstens of Beatrice, that willingness rests on the assurance that the increased state aid will "firmly and surely reduce property taxes."

Most lawmakers preferred not to place a dollar amount on the level of state aid they would support in the 1973 Legislature. Among those that did, a 50% level, or about $140 million a year, was most often mentioned.

Two senators objected to the present formula under which $35 million in annual state assistance is distributed to public elementary and secondary schools.

Sen. Harold Moylan of Omaha said he cannot support any increase under the current formula.

"We need a more equitable distribution on the school census basis and a limitation of levies by school boards," Moylan insisted.

"I would support a substantial increase if people in all school districts would get state aid in accord with their contribution in added sales and income taxes," Sen. Ramey Whitney of Chappell said.

"Otherwise, I would not support any increase."

On the other hand, Sen. David Stahmer of Omaha said he is willing to fully fund the present formula. The state should also pay 100% of the costs for special education and push for "meaningful" school district reorganization, he said.

Sen. Roland Luedtke of Lincoln said an increase of at least $75 million to $100 million is needed to "effect meaningful relief to the overburdened real estate property taxpayer."

But, he noted, "I would want to see some realistic restriction on increases in local school district expenditures."

Senator-elect Shirley Marsh of Lincoln said she is willing to support additional state school aid of $100 million or more.

Sen. Leslie Stull of Alliance said he is prepared to support legislation increasing state aid by $100 million a year "provided we can get that much property tax relief."

Senator-elect Gary Anderson of Axtell said he is willing to fund approximately 50% of the annual operational school costs from state revenue.

But, Anderson noted, he wants such legislation to include "effective equalization of disparities in per pupil expenditures as they affect poor districts," rent relief and retention of local control.

"I do not believe we should write spending increase limits into our state aid bill, but we should make local boards responsible for increases beyond certain limits," he said.

Sen. Jules Burbach of Crofton said he favors state support at "approximately 50%" of total operational costs, while Sen. Wally Barnett of Lincoln proposed a level of 50% to 75%.

School aid legislation needs qualifying mill levies for school districts and local spending limits, Barnett said.

An increase between 50% and 100% was suggested by Carstens, but only with assurance that provisions for property tax relief be "safeguarded so they cannot be circumvented."

Sen. Richard Lewis of Holbrook said he could support "up to 66 2/3% state funding," but he would insist on "an absolute 13-mill ceiling on real and personal property" taxes for school support.

"I am in favor of all the aid to education that we can afford," Sen. John Savage of Omaha said.

"I would support a substantial increase in state aid to schools," Sen. Walter Epke of York declared.

"I favor an increase," Sen. Richard Proud of Omaha said.

But all three lawmakers said the proviso that such an increase must be accompanied by guaranteed local property tax relief.

Sen. George Syas of Omaha said he would support increased state funding, "but Omaha schools must receive their fair share."

Sen. W. H. Hasebrook of West Point said he could support at least a doubling of current state aid if property tax relief is provided.

"There must be control factors as to how much of an increase in school costs will be allowed over future years," Sen. John DeCamp of Neligh said. But, with such controls provided, he said, he can support "very, very substantial" state aid.

Sen. Gerald Stromer of Kearney suggested there should be limits on both mill levies and school spending.

"I will support an increase in state aid, but not as an added tax burden," Senator-elect Dennis Rasmussen of Scotia said.

Increased state aid should be accompanied by reduced local property taxes, retention of local control and "equalization of school tax obligations among all Nebraskans," Senator-elect James Dickinson of Millard said.

Former President Growing Weaker

Kansas City (AP) — Former President Harry S. Truman, growing weaker in his struggle against heart, lung and kidney disorders, remained in a coma and critical condition late Sunday night.

Doctors at Research Hospital said the 88-year-old former chief executive was still experiencing fluctuating blood pressure and abnormal cardiac rhythm.

This was essentially the same condition Truman had been in since early Saturday, when he lapsed into a coma.

But a hospital spokesman indicated the unchanging situation was causing increasing concern.

"The longer the blood pressure continues to fluctuate and the heart rate continues to be abnormal, it has a debilitating effect," the spokesman said.

Truman was taken to the hospital from his nearby home in Independence, Mo., 20 days ago suffering from lung congestion and bronchitis.

Three times since then, the latest Saturday morning, his condition was listed as critical.

Bess Truman, 87, the former president's wife, spent much of Christmas Eve at her husband's bedside, returning to her home at midnight.

Margaret Truman Daniel, their only child, remained at her New York home Sunday, and hospital spokesmen said they didn't know when she plans to return to Kansas City.

Since last Tuesday, Truman has been given a special liquid diet in an effort to stave off blood toxicity and restore his kidney functions. The diet has succeeded in decreasing the poisonous urea nitrogen level, doctors said, but added that as the kidneys improved there are times when rapid and potentially dangerous changes in body chemistry may occur.

Prices Rise In Egypt

Cairo (AP) — Prices in Egypt for fruits and vegetables have increased 40%, meat 25.6%, fish 17%, and some dress material 22% in the last 10 months, the Cairo press reported Sunday.

Carrier Boy Credited With Saving Life

A Lincoln Star carrier boy was credited with saving the life of a Lincoln man after he woke the man up and alerted him of a fire in his apartment early Sunday morning.

District fire chief Mel Keller said that quick action and persistence on the part of Alan Heileman, 14, of 6708 Y, saved the life of Tom Rupprecht, of 1023 No. 63rd.

Alan said he was at the Chateau La Fleur apartment complex delivering papers with his father, Dale, when he smelled smoke in one of the buildings.

He said he found a section of the building filled with smoke and he and his father went from door to door awakening the sleeping residents.

Keller said Rupprecht told him that he couldn't figure out why someone kept pounding at his door, adding that it was likely young Heileman's persistence that saved the man's life.

Keller said that when fire units arrived nearly all the residents had been evacuated.

The fire which took about 10 minutes to bring under control resulted in "considerable" damage to two apartments and their contents.

Keller said some stereo equipment, a couch, curtains and a window frame were damaged in the blaze.

He said the fire had broken the window out and was burning into the bottom of the veranda of a second story apartment.

Keller said he knew the fire was going to be bad because he could smell the smoke as they were leaving the fire station which is approximately a block away from the apartment complex.

4,000 Estimated Dead In Nicaragua Quake

(c) New York Times News Service
Managua, Nicaragua — Volunteers from many Latin American nations have come to aid the survivors of the earthquakes and fires that virtually destroyed Managua, the capital of Nicaragua, and more were expected. A Red Cross official estimated the deaths at 4,000. The Red Cross said that at least 100,000 persons had fled the city, whose population was about 325,000. The Red Cross was fairly sure that at least 1,000 persons were buried in the rubble. Tens of thousands of persons were injured. (More on Page 1.)

Bombing Halt Ordered

Saigon — A 24-hour Christmas cease-fire was ordered in South Vietnam Sunday afternoon, but there was no indication that the United States intended to let up on its heavy bombing of North Vietnam. There were reports that President Nixon had approved a brief pause in the bombing, but American officers in Saigon said they had heard nothing to confirm that. (More on Page 1.)

Thuy Refuses To Talk

Washington — Xuan Thuy, who has been North Vietnam's negotiator at the Vietnam cease-fire talks in Paris said, in a television interview by the American Broadcasting Company in Paris, that his government would not resume negotiations with the United States as long as bombing raids north of the 20th parallel were continued.

Hanoi Badly Scarred

Hanoi — Telford Taylor, professor of law at Columbia University, and a retired brigadier general, who is visiting Hanoi with a group of Americans, found that the city is badly scarred and half deserted, but vigorous and in good spirits. He said essential services have been maintained, and despite the bombing's severity one can drive through the city for many blocks and see no damage whatever, indicating that the bombing has been confined to certain areas.

Hope Does Last Show

Saigon — Bob Hope, a substitute Santa for two decades of G.I.s, gave what he said was his last Christmas performance in South Vietnam, adding that he had thought that he might be able to perform in Hanoi for American Prisoners. "We figured the war would be all over by the time we got here," Hope said to about 5,000 G.I.s, generals and diplomats at Tan Son Nhut airbase in Saigon. "Now they're arguing about the hotel bill in Paris." His quip drew one of his performance's biggest laughs.

Truman Grows Weaker

Kansas City — Former President Harry S. Truman grew weaker in the 20th day of his life-and-death battle against a series of medical problems. Officials at Research

Hospital in Kansas City, Mo., reported that the 88-year-old Truman was unconscious throughout Christmas eve and that his vital signs were fluctuating almost hour by hour for the first time since he entered the hospital on Dec. 5.

Navy Begins Crackdown

San Diego — The Navy in recent weeks has reportedly begun a crackdown on dissident black sailors. Official sources have denied the existence of any crackdown, but evidence to the contrary has been growing since the aircraft carrier Kitty Hawk returned to San Diego from Southeast Asia last month after a bloody riot between black and white sailors.

Hanoi Playing Hard On Emotions Of American POW Families

Saigon (AP) — Hanoi is playing hard on the emotions of American prisoner of war families this Christmas, matching the intensity of last week's U.S. air strikes with rhetoric.

Scores of broadcasts portray North Vietnam as a nation being cruelly butchered and devastated, but still turning the other cheek to care for the American pilots captured while bombing it.

The U.S. Command has done little to dispel this notion, responding with the standard comment that American bombers target only military installations. It has refused for the past week to give out any information of substance.

Hanoi's harshest words have been reserved for President Nixon and Jerry W. Friedheim, the spokesman for the U.S. Defense Department.

Hanoi has said it intends to appeal to world opinion and the American public.

Verbal Attacks

Verbal attacks on Nixon for his decision to resume the bombing of Hanoi and Haiphong in its greatest intensity of the war are continuing, with some criticism coming from countries friendly to the United States.

Some relatives of American POWs have accused Nixon of sacrificing the prisoners' lives. A nationwide interfaith group of 44 religious leaders has accused the Nixon administration of "abandoning the possibility and betraying the duty of peace" by resuming the bombing. The National Peace Action Coalition has called for massive demonstrations in Washington and other cities on Nixon's inauguration day Jan. 20 "to put a halt to the horror" of the bombing.

Through the first six days of the renewed bombing campaign last week, the U.S. Command has acknowledged at least 17 planes downed with 69 American crewmen listed as missing. This number represents 13% of the total number of 431 Americans who were known to be prisoners in North Vietnam prior to the Dec. 18 resumption of the bombing above the 20th parallel.

While the command lists the Americans as missing, North Vietnam has presented 19 of the newly captured airmen to local and foreign newsmen in Hanoi. Two others missed the news conference because they were badly wounded, according to Hanoi.

Typical of the Radio Hanoi broadcasts is this commentary:

"Our hearts are burning with wrath, but the government of the Democratic Republic of North Vietnam and our people are unanimously determined to continue to provide humane treatment to captured enemy pilots.

"Since August 1964, hundreds of American enemy pilots who had been guilty of crimes committed in the North and were subsequently captured have been meticulously protected and provided with conditions for comfortable living. Those who were wounded and captured while committing their crimes were provided with timely medical care."

The commentary, designed to gain the full impact of the traditional family reunions at Christmas, says at another point:

"Had the Nixon administration honored its agreements with the Government of the Democratic Republic of North Vietnam and observed the time (Oct. 31) set for signing the accord on ending the war . . . how many American families would now be enjoying reunion?"

North Vietnam repeatedly has claimed that on Dec. 20 and 21 American bombs hit and damaged the main American prisoner of war camp, dubbed the "Hanoi Hilton" by the captives. It says a number of American prisoners were wounded. Friedheim has termed this claim incorrect, but Hanoi says an American peace delegation led by folk singer Joan Baez observed the damaged camp.

Lies Directed

"Nixon," says a Radio Hanoi commentary, "is precisely the one who has committed crimes of utmost cruelty against the people of Vietnam and he even poses a threat to the lives of American pilots captured here while directing his spokesman Friedheim to utter lies."

An editorial in the official North Vietnamese Communist party newspaper Nhan Dan said:

"The enemy pilots previously captured have been seriously disillusioned in the face of the treacherous attitude of the American President who refuses to sign the agreement. And now they are experiencing horror as American bombs and bullets damage detention camps and take a toll among them."

Realizing the political value of the prisoners, North Vietnam is giving out rewards for their capture.

Nhan Dan says a communication regarding awards for achievements in capturing enemy pilots."

"American pilots have been tracked down throughout the country," says Nhan Dan. "The young and the old, girls and boys alike, everyone rushes out to capture American enemy pilots . . . Their documents, weapons and equipment are expeditiously collected."

"Increased vigilance, well-knit organization, rapid communications and sharp leadership are important factors of success in this endeavor."

Wife Of Sen. Symington Dies Of Heart Attack

Washington (AP) — Evelyn Wadsworth Symington, wife of Missouri's senior U.S. senator, died unexpectedly of an apparent heart attack Sunday. She was 89.

Mrs. Symington, whose ancestors include two generations of federal law-makers and high government officials, including a secretary to Abraham Lincoln, had just returned from the Washington Redskins professional football game here when she was stricken with "very severe chest pains," a Symington aide said.

She was rushed to Georgetown University Hospital by a city rescue squad at 3:55 p.m. EST and died at 4:35 p.m., a hospital spokesman said.

Sen. Stuart Symington, who has represented Missouri in the Senate since 1962, and the couple's son Rep. James W. Symington, D-Mo., had accompanied her to the hospital.

The Symington's only other child, Stuart Symington Jr., lives in Clayton, Mo. There are six grandchildren.

Lincolnite's Group Probing National Education

By PATTY BEUTLER
Star Staff Writer

No one knows how much money is spent by federal, state and private sectors on postsecondary education, but Don Leonard is going to try to find out.

This is just one of the many tasks set before the presidentially-appointed chairman of the National Commission on the Financing of Postsecondary Education and his committee of 16.

This Lincoln attorney who is a senior partner in the law firm of Nelson, Harding, Marchetti, Leonard & Tate, heads a blue-ribbon group of nationally-known educators, administrators and financial experts.

Also serving on the commission are U.S. Sen. J. Glenn Beall Jr. of Maryland, Sen. Claiborne Pell of Rhode Island, Rep. John Brademas of Indiana and Rep. John Dellen back of Oregon.

Leonard's work since 1967 as counsel and consultant for public and private schools in the field of federal financial aid and his position as president of the Labor Finance Industrial Bank of Denver, Colo., are among his credentials for the chairmanship.

Separate Agency
Signed into law last August as part of the amendments to the Education Amendments of 1972, the commission was created as a separate and independent federal agency.

Explaining the "why" behind the commission's creation, Leonard traced the federal government's direct entry into the field of education back to the establishment of National Defense Student Loans when sprang up during the sputnik era almost 15 years ago.

As money became tighter, "postsecondary education" institutions began to experience financial difficulties and called

Commission Post To Thompson

Raymond S. Thompson III has been named executive assistant to the chairman of the National Commission on the Financing of Postsecondary Education.

A graduate of Dartmouth College and the University of Nebraska College of Law, Thompson formerly served as executive director of the Nebraska Higher Education Facilities Commission.

CARMICHAEL

MOM HAS HER OWN WAY OF SAYING, "MERRY CHRISTMAS" ---

on the federal government for help.

Leonard explained that the term "postsecondary education" includes "anything beyond high school," ranging from the traditional institutions of higher education, both private and public, to junior and community colleges, as well as technical and vocational schools.

Study Done

Fort Wayne Parishioners Send Nixon Gift

Fort Wayne, Ind. (AP) — Parts of a destroyed Christmas tree are on their way to the Florida White House, a Christmas "gift" from about 500 Fort Wayne parishioners who claim President Nixon has ruined their holiday.

A gaily decorated Christmas tree, taken from the altar of the St. Mary's Catholic Church, was torn apart, its lights and decorations smashed and stuffed into a box addressed to Nixon.

Larry Williamson, secretary of the parish council, said the pieces of the tree symbolized what Nixon had done to the Christmas of the world by renewing the bombing of North Vietnam.

The trunk of the shattered tree was returned to the altar to remind those attending Christmas masses that the bombing continues.

Because the real facts of the financial crisis in education could not be sorted out in this way, Congress created a new commission whose responsibility it would be to "bring the whole ballgame together" as Leonard put it.

In doing so the commission will make use of the many studies and reports in various fields and will attempt to fill in the gaps where research has been lacking. With a minimal internal staff, Leonard says the commission will depend on already existing entities in private, state and federal agencies for the collection of data and analysis.

Relies On Cooperation
He remarked that 80% of the success of the commission will lie in the cooperation and input of people in the field who will be asked to supply information on numerous subjects.

Generally Leonard sees the commission's task as one of coordinating facts into an "overall view of what's going on in postsecondary education today."

Although the group is supposed to make a final report to the President and Congress by next April 30, Leonard believes this time-limit is unrealistic for the size of the task involved.

As Congress is planning to undertake in-depth action on postsecondary education financing in the 1974 session, Leonard feels that the commission must complete as much of its work as is possible by very early that year.

$1,500,000 Allotted
He reports that one and a half million dollars have been allocated to the group for internal staff funding, with a finalized allotment to be announced in January.

Leonard is confident that adequate funding will be available, whether from the government or from private foundation grants. "Money is not the answer," he remarked, adding that "time is the big problem." How much can be done within a certain time frame is his big concern.

The report the commission plans to present at the end of its investigation will consist of several parts. The first will be a reference to the study guide developed from the questions put out to the field and the corresponding positions on issues that were submitted. A second section will deal now with the mechanics of programs, including suggestions for improving those that already exist. Another segment of the report will discuss those items that the commission did not study and why.

The main body of the study Leonard describes as the commission's effort to give sample alternative programs for handling postsecondary education financing in the United States on federal, state and private levels.

He emphasized that there is no one solution to the problem. The ultimate solution is one for Congress and the states to arrive at by the legislative process he believes.

In the meantime Leonard sees the problem in terms of "finding out what causes the boil instead of just putting a bandaid on it."

While the commission's report hopes to provide a basis for a coordinated approach its real value Leonard remarked will lie not so much in concrete proposals but in finding model procedures flexible enough for programs and dollar amounts in the future when the times and the situations change.

"Education is the ultimate answer," stressed Leonard — "the only way for people to change their basic life styles in a broad frontal way." And the problems must be solved now.

IN PERSPECTIVE

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

Christmas Day—its antiquity has served only to more firmly entrench it in the affairs of men. There has to be something to anything that can be around for nearly 2,000 years and still retain its vigor and its inspiration.

So what is it about this day that makes it such a special one, such a time of thoughtfulness and consideration? The answer, of course, is that it is the celebration of the birth of the infant Jesus, a day of unprecedented import to humanity.

It marked the beginning of what was destined to be the greatest sacrifice in history—the giving of life so that others might live. And that is the spirit that has prevailed throughout the years during the Christmas season.

It is a day when the best that is in us prevails, when mankind's finer instincts take over and cover the flaws that so often exist at other times. One only wishes that the spirit of Christmas could prevail throughout the year for if it could, it would transform the world.

Gone for the moment at least are the avarice, the jealousies and the petty characteristics of mankind. In their place we find people of compassion, of joy, of generosity and of kindness, looking for a change at what they might contribute to the cause of their fellow man rather than what they might receive.

When you think about the spirit of Christmas, it should really have more of a lasting effect upon you than it does. Of course, we cannot all go about giving gifts, sending cards and decorating our homes and offices every day of the year.

We cannot enjoy a permanent holiday or our society would quickly come to a grinding halt. But we could well perpetuate some of the aspects of Christmas that make the day so rewarding.

Think for a moment if you will of where you find the true joy of Christmas. It is found, not from within yourself, but from the happiness of others, of those around you. It is found in the joy of your children, the other members of your family, your friends, your associates, etc.

It is in the pleasure and happiness of others that you come to find your own rewards this day. That should give you a little something to think about all year long. Again, it is not that all of us are about to go through life thinking only of others but we might partake of far more of this than we usually do.

There is some truth to the fact that God helps those who help themselves but that is only a part of our responsibility. We have an equal responsibility to all those with whom we share this world, a responsibility to make life more meaningful and rewarding to everyone with whom we come in contact.

We seem to find this quite easy to do at Christmas time but then we seem to lock the formula away somewhere in the back of our minds for the next 12 months. We would find our lives far more rewarding if we would retain a little of the Christmas spirit throughout the entire year.

You might then come to a much better understanding of your fellow man and this is the key to a successful society—understanding one another. If only we could achieve this, we would be well on the road to a solution of many of the world's problems.

Even nations of the world might find things much more pleasant if only they could come to really understand each other. But we do not understand a skin color different from our own. We do not understand a culture that holds values in contrast to our own.

And what we don't understand, we tend to fear and from that comes the animosities that divide us as nations and as human beings. At Christmas time we find a sort of common ground, a frame of mind in which we recognize that most people have about the same goals and aspirations.

Seldom are those goals and aspirations in conflict if they are fully known. They simply spell out a way of life that is free of anguish, uncertainty and violence. That is what Christmas is all about and we hope its spirit lives beyond the brief span of this present day.

Trees Ever Green Within Memory

New York — The following is reprinted at the request of my mother:

My mother's Christmas trees always made talk around Swampoodle, the old Irish colony — or was it a ghetto? — near the Union Station in Washington, D.C. It wasn't because her trees were big — we never paid more than 50 cents for a tree — or because they were ornately decorated. Our decorations were either homemade or old beyond belief.

Mom's trees made talk because she always found it difficult to take them down.

People who didn't know Mom well, and who dropped into the house about the middle of February for a cup of tea, would stop as if shot when they saw the tree still standing. Their jaws would drop in astonishment, and you could see behind their blank eyes that they were counting the long weeks since Christmas trees had disappeared from their own well-ordered houses. Mom always knew what they were thinking. She would say placidly, "It gives the room such a nice perfume, doesn't it?"

By the first of March and its hint of Spring, Mom's tree would have shed most of its needles, and these she would have carefully swept up and burned sweet-scented in our old Latrobe. The tree would stand there like a be-medaled skeleton, or a picked but proudly decorated turkey. Our cats liked it best in this stage of disarray. It was easier to climb.

But at last she would approve of its coming down — because perhaps one of her children had been laughed at in school. She would pack away the sainted decorations and my younger brother and I would lug the tree through the house, knocking off the slim remainder of its needles, and burn it in the backyard. Mom's trees always burned nicely. They had long since passed the green lumber stage.

Mom supervised all tree-trimming in our house after my half-brother Ed and his friend Louie Nau tried to trim one for her and fell into it with a splintering crash. Seems they had been in Costello's saloon for a week or two, training for the event.

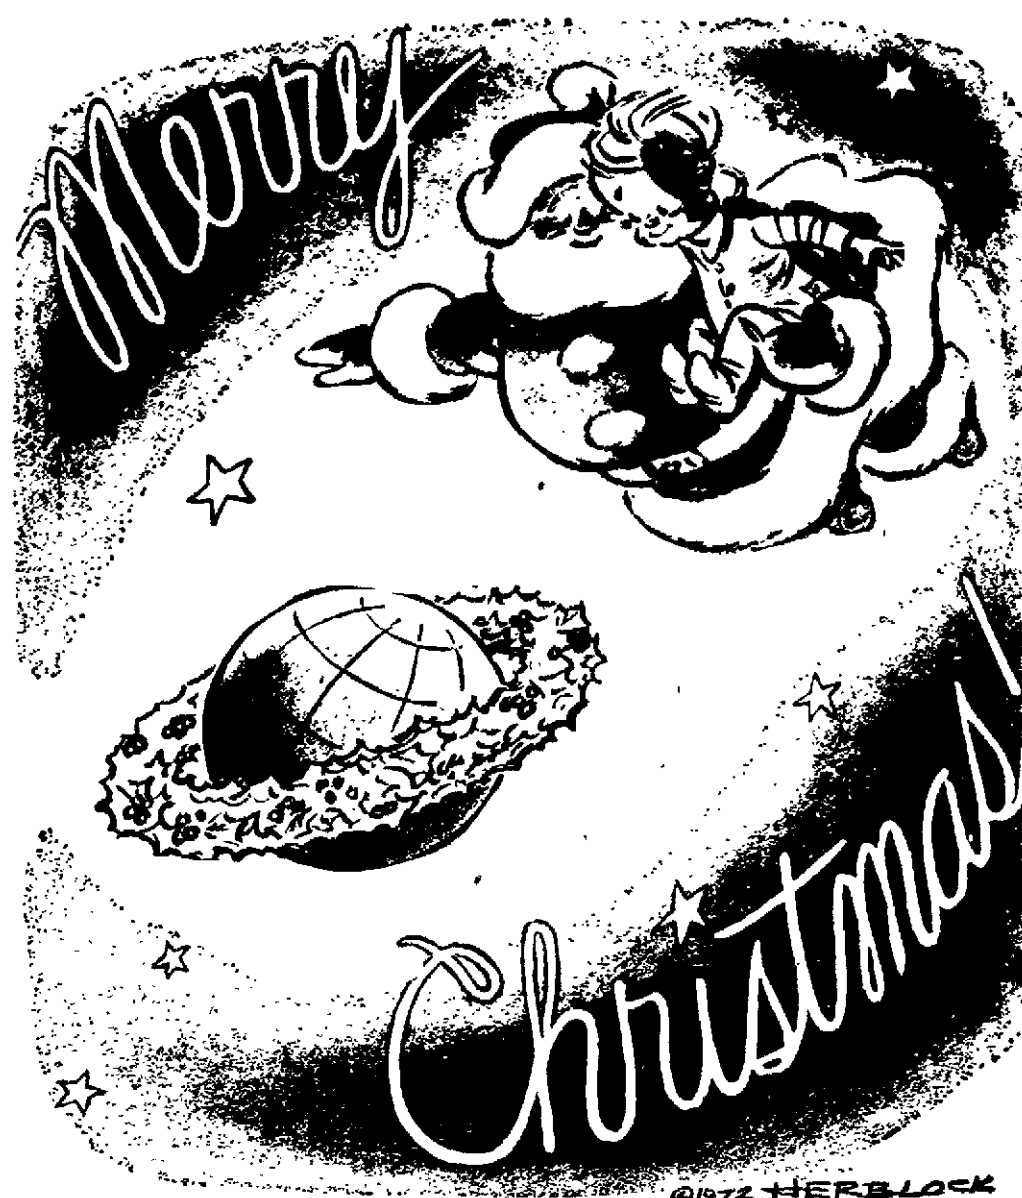

"Turn it a little more... just a little more," she would direct from the middle of the "front room," as we called it. Only the Lace Curtain Irish called a room like that "parlor." Her dear voice would come to me through the folds of the tree. I was her surrogate.

The prettiest tree we ever had was the Christmas the water pipe in our front room cracked from the cold and shot a fine spray all over the tree. The water froze and silvered our tree. Mom was always a bit on the fresh air side.

The only time we didn't have a tree was the year my father died. At that, the tree was already in its black iron base but untrimmed, on Christmas Eve, when the cop knocked on the door. Mom came to the door, wiping her hands on her apron, and the rest of us gathered around behind her. The cop took off his cap when he saw her, swallowed, and told Mom that Pop had died at his watchman's job. It was the only time, I guess, we all cried at once.

It took a long time to understand Mom's reluctance to part with her Christmas trees. And then one day I knew. Mom was only trying to space out the tender, simple joys of Yuletide.

Party Endorsements Sought

Spokesmen for both major political parties have talked in public and private recently about the possibility of each party endorsing its favored candidates before the primaries each election year.

Last week Republican National Committeeman Richard Herman brought up the subject again, although he said the proposal should be well thought out before being presented to the Legislature. "I think the earliest this could be done is 1974," Herman said. Herman has advocated party backing of qualified candidates in primaries, with such designations appearing on the ballot which would require legislative approval. Herman would not limit the number of endorsements in any one race.

Elements within both the Republican and Democratic Parties feel that pre-primary endorsements would strengthen the hand of the party structure in political affairs to help offset the trend of diminishing party influence. Endorsements of the one or more candidates who filed for office under the party banner would probably be made at state-wide pre-primary conventions held in ample time for the designations to be printed on the ballots next to the chosen candidates' names.

The matter of endorsing one or more of its candidates as qualified is really up to each party to decide. Party conventions could pick who they think would be the best candidate in the field and support him or her with all the financial and public relations resources the party can muster.

But legislation permitting the designation of party choices on the ballot should not be passed.

Proponents of pre-primary endorsements can argue that the endorsements would be used only to educate the voters as to which candidates are the most qualified. But the endorsement could also be used to reward people who have contributed to the party, or worked a long time for the party, or who best conform to the line handed down by those who control the party and who may not necessarily be the best candidates. In that case the party would be doing a service to the faithful but a disservice to the voter.

The parties can endorse candidates before the primaries in the privacy of their own conventions if they want to. It's best, however, that the ballot remain free of endorsements so that the candidates can have more of an equal chance and the people can decide among them on their own.

Next Year, Maybe . . .

This holiday season old showman Bob Hope took to the skies again to bring a touch of home to U.S. servicemen stationed in Southeast Asia. It will be his last trip under wartime conditions, he said, confidently predicting that peace in Vietnam would bring the troops home and make his annual Christmas trip unnecessary.

Today peace does not look as close as it did two weeks ago or a month ago. Closer, perhaps, than a year ago, but in the distance, nevertheless. The hopes of many Americans for an immediate cease-fire and a Christmas time reunited with loved ones home from the war zone or prisoner of war camps crumbled as the negotiations in Paris dragged on and whatever waning hopes remained for an early end were apparently shattered with the first bombs that fell in the new air assault on North Vietnam.

In fairness, it should be remembered that President Nixon's timetable for ending the war was not precise; it ranged from Henry Kissinger's "peace is at hand" statement of late October to predictions pointing to sometime around the first of the year. Indeed, George McGovern could not have ended it until after he had taken office in January, if elected. So it is not time today for recriminations against all those responsible for prolonging the incomprehensible war in Southeast Asia.

Today it is time, however, for those Americans not directly touched by the war to take a moment to remember that the prisoner of war and missing in action lists are getting longer, there are parents and wives and children who still wait. American servicemen are still being killed in Vietnam and civilians by the millions are either dying or living in terror.

Peace was not at hand this Christmas. Next year, maybe.

Windstorm From Washington

WILKES-BARRE, Pa. — Six months after Hurricane Agnes ripped through Wyoming Valley, her wake is still littered with broken buildings. Less obvious is the bureaucratic havoc wrought by Frank Carlucci, a human windstorm out of Washington.

I was taken recently on a quick tour of the devastated area trailing my car. I later learned, were two of Carlucci's agents. They were Michael Guzzi and Larry Marion who had been assigned to find out where I went, what I said and whether I left any reporters behind. They stuck on my tail all the way to the airport to make sure I was safely out of town.

Their concern about my visit made me curious what Carlucci didn't want me to discover. As President Nixon's personal representative, he directed the federal flood relief operation.

So I dispatched three reporters — Ken Fisher, Jim Dawson and Jack Choherty — to Wilkes-Barre to investigate flood relief. They brought back evidence of mismanagement, miscalculations and possible malfeasance. The FBI, which also got wind that something was wrong, has been investigating, too.

Hurricane Agnes, which battered Wyoming Valley last June 23, has now gone down as the greatest natural disaster in U.S. history. The damage is estimated at $4 billion.

Federal disaster teams rushed in swiftly to aid the flood victims. In the first few hectic weeks, thousands of bureaucrats and private citizens did heroic service.

Then Carlucci blew in from Washington and quickly rounded up 10 government press agents.

He had carte blanche authority to resolve all problems, whether it be the amount the government would loan to flood-ravaged business firms or plumbing repairs on an individual trailer.

For months, Carlucci would spend a few hours each day in the government's model mobile home in Scanlon Field, listening to citizen complaints. The cases he heard became known thereafter as "Carlucci Specials" and were handled by special assistants with authority over all government departments.

For those fortunate enough to gain an audience with him, Carlucci issued dramatic orders that often produced more waste than results. He arranged for a crane, for example, to lift a supplicant's

ON TARGET

Hello, is this the lawyer for Pepsi Cola?

Speaking. Stand by, please. This is a conference call. I will have a Mister Brezhnev in Moscow and a Mister Claus at the North Pole on the line in a moment.

Oh. Merry Christmas from Washington, Secretary Brezhnev. And Merry Christmas to you, Santa.

Ho, ho, ho! Power to the proletariat! Well, that just shows you the diversity of our world.

Diversity is one of its strengths. Here we are, the three of us, quite different in many ways, communicating together over the phone on this Christmas Day, exchanging pleasantries and proving once again that we can all live together in peace with goodwill to all men.

Ho, ho, ho! Hey, Brezhnev, that's my line.

Sorry, Claus. It seemed appropriate.

Okay. Now, let's get down to business. I'm calling you guys today to see if you got everything you wanted for Christmas. I'm taking a random poll of our customers around the world.

Polls. I just love polls.

Yeah, Nixon, I thought you'd especially like it. Anyway, I'm trying to do everything I can to see that my customers are satisfied. Ralph Nader's idea,

Don Walton
One-Day
Peace

you know. He's been threatening to assign a task force to me. Little kids have been calling him, telling him they don't always get what they asked for even if they follow the directions.

Directions, Claus? Yeah, you know. The guarantee has always been that if you were good all year, you'd get what you wanted for Christmas. Nader says we have to meet the full obligations of the guarantee or change it.

Well, Claus, the Secretary can speak for himself. But, as for me, speaking as one who has admired your work for five decades, I have no complaints. You gave me everything but Massachusetts, and I think that's pretty good.

Oh, yes, I could complain about not getting all 50 gifts I asked for. But I'm not going to do that. You may ask why. Well, the answer is that the fullest satisfaction is in striving, not in attaining.

Good grief, Nixon. If you had done as much striving as we have since the revolution, you'd be a little more interested in attaining.

Go on, Brezhnev. Tell me how I've done with the gifts, from your point of view.

I'm happy about the Pepsi, Claus. We Russians have been longing for that soda.

Pardon me for interrupting,

TOM WICKER

Two Can Play The Game

NEW YORK — The United States pulled 300 troops out of South Vietnam last week, lowering its strength there to 24,900, the smallest total since February, 1965. Those with long memories and ironic minds will recall that February, 1965 was the month when President Johnson began the bombing of North Vietnam, in an effort to force the Hanoi government to agree to American terms in the lethal dispute over the future of Indochina.

Since then, the nation has gone full circle through an effort that at its zenith took more than half a million troops into Vietnam for the longest war in American history; but those ubiquitous "well-placed American officials" who never have a name or a title are saying nevertheless that President Nixon once again is pondering ways and means "to put pressure on North Vietnam to reach an early cease-fire agreement."

Have "well-placed American officials," whether their names are Nixon or Smith or Kissinger or Jones, learned nothing from seven years of failing war?

Can they conceivably believe that they can "pressure" North Vietnam into doing what Nixon wants it to do, when not this country, or South Vietnam, or Australia, or New Zealand, or South Korea, or the combination of them all, has been able in seven years to defeat on the battlefield the forces that Hanoi supports?

Is it possible, after 50,000 American deaths and so much slaughter in Indochina that no humane man can think of it without flinching, that these officials still believe that anything short of total devastation or nuclear annihilation is going to force the North Vietnamese to accept terms they consider inimical to their interests and goals?

If Nixon will not be "blackmailed" or "stamped" or "charmed" into an agreement he does not believe "just and fair," what makes him think that his opposite numbers in Hanoi will be any less resolute?

If Sen. James Buckley of New York really believes that "force is the only language which (sic) Hanoi understands," would he please explain how for seven years, under the heaviest aerial bombardment ever known to man, suffering and power losses that as described by American-Saigonese spokesmen have been astronomical, and with their harbors mined, the North Vietnamese continue to fight, and pretty well at that?

But these are merely rhetorical questions, however justified by disgust and outrage. The fact is that the United States has resumed bombing throughout North Vietnam, as well as the aerial mining of that country's harbors. This is an obvious effort to "pressure" the North Vietnamese, in the wake of the breakdown of negotiations in Paris, despite Ronald Ziegler's efforts to describe it as a sort of "protective reaction" against the possibility of a new North Vietnamese offensive.

This is an effort that will fail, as all other efforts to "pressure" the North Vietnamese have failed. The truth is that these people—at least their unchallenged leaders—are guided by a cause and sustained by zeal; and their government and society are not so constituted as to be much affected by the kind of bombing that could not even "pressure" industrialized Germany in the 1940s.

Amazon Dream Intact For Most

•The New York Times

Novo Brasil — The first harvest was not generally up to expectations, the work was hard and living conditions were difficult, but for most settlers the Amazon dream remains intact.

This town is being carved out of the rain forest to support the Brazilian government's vast colonization program along the Trans-Amazon Highway. Situated 30 miles west of Altamira, it is to be the center for 22 farm villages with about 50 families each.

Last September the first 500-mile stretch of the Trans-Amazon Highway was opened from Estreito to Itaituba. Since then there has been a rush of settlers.

The Agency for Land Reform and Colonization has staked out a six-mile stretch on each side of the highway for settlement. Each settler family is given a 250-acre lot of forest land, six months' minimum salary until the first harvest and a house that can be paid for over 30 years after a three-year grace period.

Under the official plan 2,500 families, or about 15,000 people, have been brought to the area. The program has slowed because of a lack of building materials, and only 1,000 families have received housing.

"The natural influx is now more important than the official settlement program," says Walter Costa Porto, an agency official, who estimates the number of settlers in the area to be 4,000 families or 24,000 people.

Heavy Ruins
The settler airlift will be suspended for the six-month rainy season. There is no planting during the heavy rains and communications are extremely difficult.

One of the last groups of settlers arrived at the Altamira Airport from the arid northeastern state of Ceara. Some of the women and children wept when they saw the great green forest wall encircling the airport.

"In Ceara I used to work hard and achieve nothing," said Jose Francisco Nascimento, who was with his wife and nine children. "I earned barely enough to feed the family. There was no money for clothes and the children could not go to school. Here, they say, things will be different."

Antonio Sebastiao Das Santos came from the dry coastal state of Alagoas, where he was earning 80 cruzeiros ($13) a week as a night watchman. Now, like the other settlers, he receives a minimum wage of 206 cruzeiros ($34) monthly for six months while he clears his land and plants his crops.

"I want to improve my life, and here I have a chance to work for myself," he said.

Most of the settlers interviewed in the farm villages say that life has already improved for them and hope for the best, but the young people

Ten Paintings Displayed At Sheldon Gallery

Ten paintings are on display in the rental and sales gallery at the Sheldon Memorial Art Gallery on the University of Nebraska-Lincoln campus. The exhibition continues through Jan. 21.

The paintings may be taken home for as long as six months. Monthly rental fees vary according to the price of the paintings. If the paintings later are bought by the renter, the total rental fee is deducted from the purchase price.

Among the artists who have paintings on display are James Eisenstrager, an art professor at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln; Peter Hill, an art professor at the University of Nebraska at Omaha, who has done a hard-edge painting of boxes; and Mrs. Philomene Bennett, Kansas City, Mo.

Other paintings include an Impressionistic landscape by William Lyberis, formerly of Lincoln who now lives in New York; and a painting of a woman in a red dress by Marv Keogh, Omaha.

Cuba Returns Money

Atlanta (UPI) — Southern Airways reported Sunday the Cuban government had promised to return the reported $2 million in ransom taken there by three bandits in a hijacked Southern plane last month.

are generally dissatisfied and some settlers are bitter.

Wants To Go Back
Rodrigues Dal Silva, who came from Ceara, would like to go back as soon as he can. He complains about the isolation, the thankless work, poor harvest, lack of water and low prices paid for the settlers' production by the official purchasing company.

"Our chief problem is paternalism," according to Joaqui mBaima, the agency's chief administrator in Altamira. "Many of the settlers arrive here and expect the government to give them everything. They will have to understand that if they do not work they will not eat."

A basic question remains: How long can the government and the taxpayers support the heavy costs?

The government's response to critics focuses on "the policy of national integration," which aims to reduce regional imbalances and decentralize development. It is pointed out that Amazonia covers 59% of the national territory but has only 8% of the population and 4% of the national income.

Another question concerns what will happen to the Amazon forest. The Forestry Control Board is supposed to limit the damage but it has virtually no personnel to control the vast area. Much valuable wood is simply being burned and large stretches are charred wastes.

JUST GETTING AHEAD

This Christmas season may have come to an end for most of us, but Leonard Gray, supervisor of Hasbro Industries, Inc., one of the country's biggest toy manufacturers, says they are working overtime nights and weekends busily gearing up for next Christmas. This plant in Central Falls, R.I., has guards patrolling the design area to discourage industrial espionage. Gray inspects a newly designed toy mold with Bob Munger, left.

Even Santa Is Searched Before He Boards Plane

Cleveland, Ohio (AP) — What does a hijack-conscious security guard do when a man wearing a Santa Claus suit and carrying a bulging sack starts to board an airplane?
Guards at Hopkins International Airport dutifully went through all the packages the costumed fellow was carrying in his sack Sunday afternoon. Just as Edward Cline had said, all were Christmas gifts, and he was finally cleared for the flight to Washington, D.C.
Cline, of Tiffin, Ohio, and his wife planned to pay a surprise visit to relatives. The red suit was part of the holiday surprise, they said.

Pope Prays For War's End At Midnight Mass

Ponzano, Italy (AP) — Pope Paul VI prayed for an end to war, violence and intrigue at a midnight Mass in cold, bonfire-lit mountains among miners and shepherds.

The 75-year-old pontiff left the Vatican Sunday night to visit miners, who worked Christmas Eve digging a railroad tunnel on Mount Soratte 31 miles north of Rome.

"There can and must arise a new way of being men," Pope Paul said in his homily. "There must not be need to have recourse to war, violence or intrigue to restore a better order in human living."

It was the second time in 12 hours that the pontiff pleaded for an end to war. "We have our heart in anguish," he said in his noon speech Sunday, referring to Vietnam.

Pope Paul put on a miner's hard hat and drove nearly two miles into the tunnel to bless the digging site.

Then he said Mass at a makeshift altar the miners had built outside with stone slabs from the tunnel. Bonfires lit the mountain slopes. Shepherds stood in silence near their bleating flocks. Villagers had marched up the slopes in torchlight processions.

Fireworks flashed into the night before the Pope led the crowd of nearly 2,000 in prayer.

"Jesus Christ has been born for you, for each one of you," the pontiff said. "He, Jesus, entering upon the scene of human history, willed to meet by preference simple, humble and poor men and women, and especially workers, because when he was older he became a man of ordinary work . . ."

"Every man can say: Christ came for me, truly for me all the more. Can any one of you say: God has come into the world for me to meet me, to visit me, to save me," the Pope said.

The Pope spoke with a firm voice. His doctor, Mario Fontana, was beside the altar but the pontiff appeared to stand remarkably well the fatigue of the nighttime trip into the cold mountain air.

Pope Paul went to the tunnel in response to an invitation sent by the miners when they learned they were scheduled to work Christmas Eve.

It was the third Christmas Eve the Pope spent away from the Vatican. He said Mass in 1968 among workers at the huge steel works of Taranto, in southern Italy, and went to Florence on Christmas Eve 1966 to bring consolation after a disastrous flood.

In one of the prayers following the homily, a priest invoked God's consolation for the survivors of the earthquake in Nicaragua, and the "many who have died."

Haiti Makes Effort To Tell Of Changes

•The New York Times
Port-au-Prince, Haiti — In a fashionable neighborhood called Canape Vert, next to a school called the Peter Pan Kindergarten, a big blue Buick sits in its garage. Nobody has driven it for months and layer of white dust lies on its hood.

The gracious blue and white house with the stucco trim above the garage has dusty windows, too. Inside, where maids once scurried to serve the rich and the powerful, a policeman sits quietly. Or at least, that's what the neighbors say.

A stranger was peering through the locked red gate a couple of days ago. "You don't want to stay here," a Haitian told him. "Don't you know who lives here?"

Luckner Cambonne lived there. Cambonne, the son of a preacher, a former bank teller who became one of the most powerful men in Haiti, was summarily removed on Nov. 15 as Haiti's minister of interior and national defense. On order of President Jean-Claude Duvalier in what is clearly an effort on the part of the administration to tell the world that Haiti is changing, Cambonne fled into exile.

Tells Only Half

Actually, the empty Cambonne house tells only half the story. In a decidedly less affluent section of town, another building stands unused. For a year and 10 months — up until Nov. 15 — men in rags crowded about its yellow-tile front every morning at 6:30, waiting to be permitted up to the second floor, where they sold their blood at $3 a liter.

It was a thriving business called Hemo Caribbean and while it lasted, in exported between 5,000 and 6,000 liters of plasma a month to the United States and other developed nations.

Cambonne reportedly had a business relationship with Joseph B. Gorenstein, the Miami stockbroker who started Hemo Caribbean and who made a net profit of $4 to $5 for each liter of Haitian blood plasma he shipped.

When the story of Gorenstein's operation was published in the Times last January, he denied there had been any dealings between his company and Cambonne. The government said nothing, then.

But the Haitian government now openly disputes Gorenstein.

Dr. Fritz Cineas, secretary of state for information and coordination, told this reporter recently that a principal reason for Cambonne's ouster was his relationship with Hemo Caribbean.

Venture Offended

Cineas said that both the president and his mother, Mrs. Francois Duvalier, were offended at the aspect of such a venture in Haiti. Operations like Gorenstein's have existed in other countries in Latin America for quite some time, but none as poor as Haiti, where malnutrition is a major problem and where property is stark: the minimum wage has only recently been increased to a dollar a day, unemployment is believed to be more than 30% and the most acceptable figure for annual per capita income is only $80 a year.

Since the dismissal of Cambonne, the 21-year-old Jean-Claude Duvalier—who was sworn in as president-for-life after the death of his father, Francois, in April, 1971 — has been making statements indicating the need for morality in government and that he will not accept "abuses of authority."

This has stirred speculation here that President Duvalier may fire other top government officials. But Cineas said there is no basis to the speculation. "The president," he said, "has expressed his total confidence in the cabinet."

There is an air of change in Haiti, perhaps more anticipated than real at this point, but the fear and intimidation that stalked the streets of Port-au-Prince with the secret police of the elder Duvalier is gone. Haitians say they do not know who is more responsible — Jean-Claude or his mother — but they have ample reason to believe their government is becoming more benign.

No Political Arrests

Sources here, both Haitian and foreign, say that no clear-cut political arrests have been made by the new administration.

Haitian politics, however, are still less than exuberant. On Feb. 11, for example, elections will be held to decide who will occupy the 58-seats that constitute the unicameral legislature. There are hundreds of candidates for office, but Cineas said that none are in opposition to the president, only to each other.

Nevertheless, the international business community continues to show more confidence in President Duvalier's government and the pace of Haiti's economy, which stagnated during the 1960's under the president's father, is quickening.

At least four new hotels are either in planning or construction and a fifth is being renovated. These projects will add at the very least 200 new hotel rooms to Port-au-Prince and it is significant that some of the planning is being done to accommodate visiting businessmen.

But the turbulent past inhibits investors, who can still see evidence of it. The gleaming white presidential palace is an example. A reporter who was escorted into it a few days ago found it literally bristling with a formidable array of weaponry, including machine guns, cannons and even a tank. Armed troops were everywhere.

But outside the palace gates, the gentility and goodwill were as unrelenting as the poverty. Even in the poorest neighborhoods, one can walk with relative safety at all hours.

"Why the hell do they need all those guns?" asked one foreign businessman as he rode past the palace. "It gives you the impression they're waiting for something to happen."

Services At Bethlehem Outshine Grim Security

Bethlehem (AP) — Wintry sunshine glinted off silver swords and lances as Christmas Eve came to this hilltop town where Christ was born, and ceremonies began in the 800-year-old church above the manger where the baby Jesus lay.

Israeli troops with sub-machine guns at the ready patrolled the town's steep stone streets to avert any guerrilla attempts to sabotage Christmas in the Holy Land.

But the music of bells and carols rang over the town, and the weapons of ancient days outshone the grim precautions of the 20th century during the opening procession of Christmas Eve.

Patriarch Arrives

As an Arab band played "O Come All Ye Faithful," the patriarch of Jerusalem arrived in splendor in Manger Square. He was flanked by five mounted police with glinting spears, and led by an oriental dragoman carrying a curved sword and thumping the glad tidings of Christmas with a silver-headed staff.

Beside a 25-foot Christmas tree outside Bethlehem's little stone police post, the Roman Catholic patriarch donned his purple robes and walked with clasped hands through two lines of choristers, priests and acolytes to the 12th century Church of the Nativity.

Beneath the church is the marble-lined grotto that tradition says is the stable where Christ was born. There after midnight Mass the patriarch — Msgr. Giacomo Giuseppe Beltritti — places a tiny statue of the baby Jesus atop a vermillion star, the climax of Christmas in the holy land.

Police linked arms behind the patriarch to keep crowds from pressing through steel barriers set up in Manger Square — a noisy parking lot for most of the year but hung with festive lights for Christmas.

Arab Cars Searched

Three miles from Bethlehem, police roadblocks halted everyone except pilgrims and visitors bearing official passes. Arab cars were searched for hidden weapons, and Israeli border police in green berets patrolled the roads.

Bethlehem's Arab mayor, Elias Freij, complained that security was so tight it was keeping genuine pilgrims away.

"The precautions are the strictest they have ever been — it is cutting down the crowds," the mayor told newsmen. "I couldn't get here in my own car, and I am the mayor."

Arab guerrillas have threatened to attack at Christmas every year since Israel captured Bethlehem from Jordan in the 1967 Mideast war. No incidents have occurred for the past five years, but with recent terrorist actions such as the Israel airport massacre and the Olympic Games killings, the Israeli military was taking no chances.

Deuterium Abundance Surprising

•The New York Times

New York — Deuterium, a heavy form of hydrogen, has been discovered in unexpected abundance in a giant cloud of dust and gas lying beyond the filmy Orion Nebula. The constellation of Orion, "Hunter of the Winter Skies," is formed of stars within the Milky Way Galaxy.

This and other observations of deuterium, reported here, will, it is hoped, provide new insights into the manner in which the universe and its elements were formed.

At the same time it was reported that the last vestiges of doubt had been dispelled as to the nature of the faint radio "glow" that pervades the heavens. There now seem no observational data challenging the view that this glow is the remnant of light from the fireball in which the universe was born.

Furthermore, according to Dr. David T. Wilkinson of Princeton University, the glow seems to serve as a "stationary" medium within which to measure the absolute motion of the Earth relative to the universe as a whole. In this respect it serves a role analogous to that of the long-sought "ether" — the medium through which light was once thought to move.

These and other current problems were discussed in the final day of the Sixth Texas Symposium on Relativistic Astrophysics, held this week at the Americana Hotel in New York.

Proton And Neutron
Deuterium is double-weight hydrogen in that its nucleus instead of the single proton in a hydrogen nucleus, contains two nuclear particles — a proton and neutron. It enters into energy-generating fusion reactions, such as those in a hydrogen bomb or in a star, more readily than hydrogen.

Hence it has been assumed that "burning" of deuterium in stars has roughly halved the amount of this substance in the universe, relative to hydrogen, since the primordial explosion in which it is widely believed, the universe began.

Until recently it has also been assumed that all the deuterium dates from that explosive phase — that no replacement has been manufactured since then.

In any case it is hoped that determining relative abundance of deuterium in the universe today will cast light on the nature of the primordial cloud that exploded.

One group reported on the detection of deuterium atoms with a radio telescope of the California Institute of Technology aimed at the center of the Milky Way Galaxy. The observations were made between March and August.

Radio Antenna
Following this, in October, the radio antenna of the National Radio Astronomy Observatory atop Kitt Peak in Arizona was directed at a great gas cloud in Orion. In this case the measurement indicated the ratio of ordinary hydrocyanic acid to the form in which its hydrogen is replaced by deuterium.

As stated by Dr. Arno A. Penzias of the Bell Telephone Laboratories, the relative abundance of the form with deuterium was "remarkable."

In the cloud it was one part in 200. In water on Earth the ratio of ordinary water to "heavy" water (with one deuterium atom) is one to 6,500. In meteorites the ratio is one to 16,000.

The cloud is estimated to contain material equivalent in mass to 10,000 suns, and it is assumed that new stars are forming within it. Since these are presumably depleting the deuterium, the observation is particularly puzzling.

One possibility recently discussed is that a stellar explosion, or supernova, manufactures deuterium. Another is that it is made in objects — as yet unknown — of enormous mass (perhaps 10,000 times heavier than the sun). Now that deuterium can be found in space, such places of origin may be identified.

Turkish Workers Abroad Help Industrialization At Home

• By John J. O'Connell

Istanbul — Turkey's main export has become unemployment in the form of migrant workers whose paychecks abroad are being counted on by planners here to build domestic industries.

The rapid development of industry has become the primary target in this mainly agricultural country, which decided last year to become a full member of the European Common Market by 1995.

One of the principal ways Turkey is planning to pay for importation of industrial equipment is through the Turkish workers who are in Western Europe, particularly West Germany, and who send back more than $1,000 each annually to their families here.

There are 650,000 Turkish workers in western Europe. Their remittances have come close to $900 million, which is far more than any other Turkish source of foreign income.

The third five-year plan that goes into effect next month foresees an increase in the number of Turkish workers in Europe to 1.2 million by 1977. The expected remittances have become a major factor in Turkey's balance of payments and have helped swell foreign reserves to more than $1 billion this year.

"Five years ago nobody on the planning commission dreamed that worker remittances would completely alter our foreign exchange balance," one senior Turkish planner said.

"Who would have imagined that there was such potential for labor mobility among workers who have never been outside their Anatolian villages in many cases?" he said.

The movement of Turkish workers, the largest single foreign group in Germany, has been a significant development for Turkey's gradual move toward Western Europe in this century.

This is a process that will culminate over the next 23 years during which Turkey will gradually adopt a common external tariff with the Common Market countries and finally become a full member.

But the mobility of Turkish labor also reflects a serious domestic problem of unemployment. Despite consistent achievement of growth targets set for the economy in the last decade, with annual increases of close to 7% in production of goods and services, unemployment has grown to more than 10% of the labor force of about 13 million workers.

Some workers return from Germany and other European countries with enough capital to buy a taxi or open a small shop. Others may return eventually with industrial skills for expanded Turkish industrial production.

1.8 Million Expected But for the immediate future, even if the 8% annual growth rate for the next five years is achieved according to plan, the unemployed labor force is expected to reach at least 1.8 million persons. Only part of these can be absorbed by migration.

The heavy emphasis on industrialization in the third five-year plan is supposed to start Turkey on the way to being competitive in the European Common Market, and not just a supplier of raw materials and agricultural products.

The industrial investments are to be heavily dependent on domestic resources, with foreign investments playing a relatively small role.

The rate of domestic savings, voluntary or through taxes, is supposed to rise to 26% of the country's gross national product, which is an extremely heavy burden implying strong limitations on consumption.

Mekong Makes Lake Increase Sevenfold

Phnom Penh — The Mekong in the rainy season backs up into its Cambodian tributary, the Tonle Sap (Great Lake) and increases the lake's size to seven times its normal area. The nutrient-laden water enriches the surrounding farmlands and makes the lake one of the world's most productive fishing grounds.

Pay In Canada Up Faster Than In U.S.

Ottawa — Wages in the manufacturing sector are rising faster in Canada than in the United States. In 1963 the average U.S. wage earner got 51 cents (26.2 per cent) more per hour than his Canadian counterpart. By early 1972 the American lead had shrunk to 29 cents an hour, an advantage of 8.5 per cent.

Although there is a strong outflow of rural population toward urban areas, housing construction is supposed to get less investment in the 1973-1977 period than during the last five years.

Ploughed Back

Instead, the resources for higher savings and less investment in social areas, such as housing, are to be ploughed back into industries by both state enterprises, which are running heavy deficits, and heavily protected private manufacturers.

Some aspects of the strategy came in for sharp criticism at a recent seminar involving leading economists, government officials and private bankers and industrialists.

It was noted particularly that Turkey has an inflation under way that has raised prices 20% annually for the last two years. The rise in living costs followed a 55% devaluation of the Turkish lira in August, 1970. This brought about a 50% rise in agricultural exports, but domestic food prices have soared also.

Heavy emphasis on industrial investment is not matched by investments planned for agriculture and marketing, and these prospects of continuing state deficits with tax credit control was seen as spelling more inflation that could seriously weaken the industrial investment plan.

Message: Don't Fret About Us

Kabul, Afghanistan — The word from Seghnan on the Russian border was this: Don't worry about us, we can survive the winter; keep the wheat until we can get down in the spring.

Seghnan by the first week of December was snowed in for the winter, out of reach of the wheat stacked and waiting 50 miles south at Eskashem in Badakshan, Afghanistan's isolated northeasterly province.

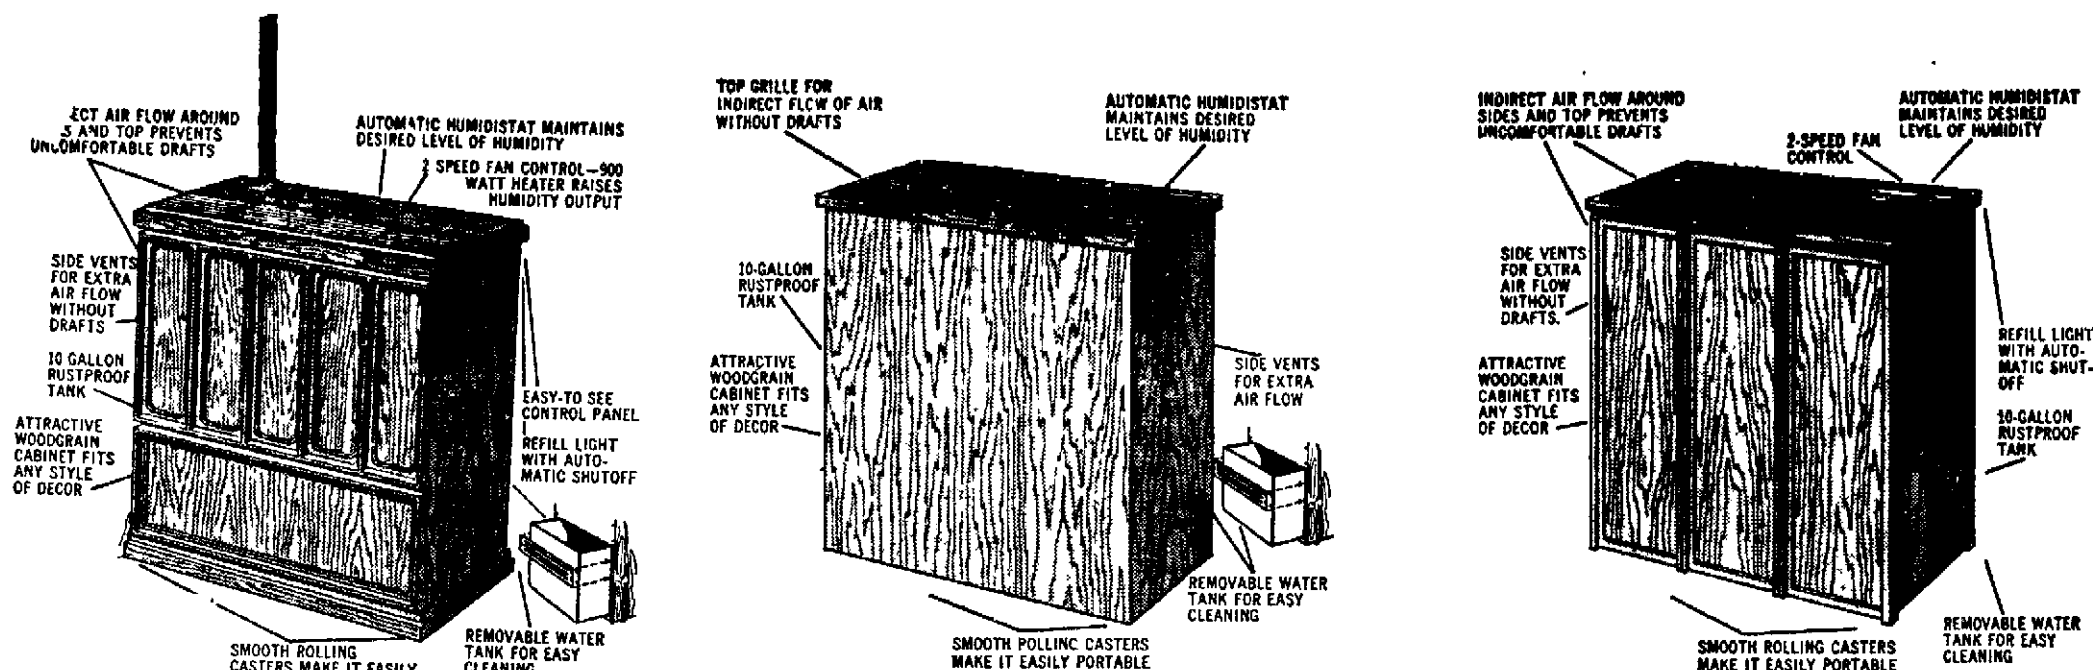

Eskashem was a distribution point for Operation Help, the crash, three-month scheme to try to get enough wheat to Afghans in famine-ridden inaccessible areas before winter struck to keep them from starving. Thousands, with some estimates reaching 80,000, died in landlocked, mountainous Afghanistan last winter and spring because two years of drought had deprived them of food.

According to Abe S. Ashcanaze, 53, of Seattle, the American consultant to the program, Badakshan Gov. Ghulam Ali Ayen received messages from Seghnan that the irababtan's thought they would make it through the winter in their lofty area.

"It may be far from perfect," said Ashcanaze, a management specialist with the U.S. Agency for International Development, "but it's damned near a miracle."

No one knows how many destitute persons will not receive food. Many had left areas now cut off.

Early skepticism about the success of the operation has faded.

Famed Prof Sidney Hook Breaks Rule, Gives Own Opinions In Final Class

By The New York Times

New York — Professor Sidney Hook of New York University has just done something in the classroom that he has prided himself on avoiding during his 45 years as a teacher of philosophy. He gave his own opinions.

"I make it a rule not to present what I believe," Hook said as he walked in the rain toward his final classroom appearance before his retirement. "Today, in honor of the event, for the first time my students will be able to find out what I believe without having to go to a library."

The occasion was apparently successful, concluded by the consumption of more than three-quarters of a gallon of French champagne that was provided by the 25 students in the class.

For Hook, a small, wiry man — who was also celebrating his 70th birthday — it was the end of a sometimes stormy academic career in which he has moved from Marxism to being a leading critic of the new left.

Even in his last class, politics was a top order of business.

Startled to find three colleagues sitting among the students for his final lecture, Hook, who has a Ph.D. from Columbia but is usually referred to as "professor" rather than "doctor," proceeded to expound his own philosophy of history.

He said Karl Marx "would have to modify some of his conclusions if he were alive today," adding that the New Deal "proved that political democracy could be used to modify the economic system."

Hook paced across the front of the room, pausing occasionally at the blackboard, on which he would draw intricate circles and lines as if to explain a complicated philosophical point.

He spoke of "political democracy being basic to freedom" and criticized systems in which there is "totalitarianism" or "a lack of traditional values."

How Many?

Then, holding out his clenched right hand, Hook asked:

"If I had within my hand the exact date at which you will die, how many of you would like to know it?"

Not bothering to wait for a response, Hook said that "only a foolish person" would want the answer "because he would die a thousand times in expectation of the date."

He said this showed "there are some things that are better not to know" and that intelligence — the central virtue of moral life — is being able to judge the limitations of knowledge.

"As a student and at a great distance a colleague of John Dewey, I have always believed this," Hook said, "but in the last few years I've come to the conclusion that though there is no substitute for intelligence it is not enough. I've discovered that people may be intelligent but lack the moral courage to act."

He said that "observing the behavior of some of my colleagues" prompted him to bemoan what he considers the lack of moral courage among people who are otherwise intelligent.

Not Enough Rallied

Hook's remarks were apparently related to a feeling that not enough professors around the country rallied to his cause during the last few years as he has condemned campus uprisings, violence and ethnic quotas and many manifestations of New Left activism.

A fetishism of action has become a substitute for prolonged concern for ideas," Hook said in an interview. "I don't get the same feeling of interest and love of ideas from today's students as I got from students in past years. They are impatient with theory."

Throughout his career, Hook says, he has used the Socratic method of teaching — "analyzing and challenging ideas, provoking students into challenging ideas and asking them to develop critical attitudes toward fundamental assumptions."

Hook plans to continue to keep active after his retirement, already having formulated ideas for five books, the final one of which will be his autobiography. "I'm going to call it 'Out of Step,'" he said. "I've always been out of step. A premature Marxist. A premature anti-Communist."

Brandeis, the store that's better for Christmas is better the day after, too . . .

The weather in the Aegean is unseasonably warm. It should be in the mid-fifties now, but it's closer to seventy. We've been cruising the Greek islands in little stop-and-go boats. Here's how:

Be sure listed hotels are open before you get off. On the small islands plumbing is primitive. Hot water — are you kidding? Even hippies complain about C class hotels.

Mykonos — five hours, $5.35 — by boat from Athens is most popular island. In summer, too popular. Great now: White and blue. No color allowed except on church domes. Whitewashed narrow streets. Windmills creaking on hillsides. Geraniums. Honeysuckle. Roses. Morning glories.

Good morning smells. Salt blue sea. Baker with cart of hot raisin bread. Grapevines. Flowers. Many tiny shops. Every doorway has someone making sandals. Hammering silver. Weaving rugs. Ceramics. Sweaters knitted to order in three days. (Four shops with American craftsmen.)

Best places to eat: Antonini or Maria's. On the beach. Music all day. Food's not that great, but plenty of atmosphere. Locals eat here.

Action spots are like a floating crap game. Change from week to week. Best are Eugene's. The Windmill. Thalini's. Billy's Bar. Best dancers on the island are Eugene and his three brothers. Greek dancing. You'll never forget it. (It's a gay bar, but they change hats when the tourists come in straight.)

Tip: At 4 p.m. — sailing time back to Athens — you can buy return tickets for half that $5.35 price, every day American kids buy ticket. At last minute can't bear to leave. Sell them for half price at the dock.

... we are making plans now for cruising around the Greek islands."

I'd plan early spring or late fall rather than summer. The islands are crowded in the high season. And cruise ships (Epirotiki is the big one) put you ashore just in time to have lunch. In the hot, hot afternoon, everything shuts down. And there you are, wandering the steaming streets, looking at closed shops.

Prices are good at this time of year. We did 10 ports and islands for less than $20. Hotel rooms average $5. Even top class seem to go for about $20. What's wrong with it? Lamb, eggplant, Greek salad and fish very good. But Greek food doesn't fire me up. And winter is not swimming weather.

"We'd like to buy a house in Mexico (looking forward to retirement in eight years). Should we take out immigrant papers now?"

No can do. The rentista immigrant papers require that you live in Mexico, leaving it only 89 days during the first and second years. (Don't know how strictly this is enforced. Probably not much. Ask someone living down there.)

Advantages of being rentista immigrant: You can take car and all kinds of household goods into Mexico without paying duty. And after five years, you can work in Mexico. After two years residence, you can go in and out anytime.

To get papers, a male foreigner must be 50 years old or more. Prove that he will have $240 a month for the next five years. Couples prove they will have $320 plus $80 for each child over 15. (Wife doesn't have to be over 50 years.) Cost of living: Americans outside Mexico City say monthly $600 per couple does it like a dream.

"Should we do our freepoint shopping in Singapore or Hong Kong?"

Think Singapore a little cheaper — Hong Kong shop rentals going out of sight. But best selection in Hong Kong. Mo' bettah you bargain though.

... best time to go to Tahiti?"

Not now. Rain by the bucketful day after day puts a damp chill even in tropic islands. About May or June it gets better.

For the way the South Pacific should be, I'd give Tahiti a couple of days and then go over to Moorea. Or better: up to Bora Bora in the Islands-Under-the-Wind. Sleepy lagoons and coco palms. Papeete town is getting awfully modern.

'No Free Lunch' Understatment

By LEONARD SILK

New York — Concern about the impact of population and industrial growth on the environment and limited resources of "spaceship Earth" is causing some economists to re-examine their first principles.

"Probably the oldest battlecry of the economics profession is 'TINSTAAFL'—there is no such thing as a free lunch."

This means you can't get something for nothing; natural resources, capital and labor must be used to produce anything of value. Economists cite the principle as proof of their hardboiled realism.

Not Harsh Enough

But Prof. Nicholas Georgescu-Roegen of Vanderbilt University, a distinguished fellow of the American Economic Association says TINSTAAFL is not nearly harsh enough.

He contends that "the cost of any biological or economic enterprise is always greater than the product." In other words, "you never get as much out of a lunch as you put into it."

The basis for this pessimistic principle is the physical Law of Entropy.

The notion of entropy is so involved that it is not easily understood even by physicists. However, a relatively simple definition of entropy—too simple to satisfy the physicists but adequate for general purposes—is "a measure of the unavailable energy in a thermodynamic system."

Energy comes in two qualitative states: available or free energy, which man can readily control and use, and unavailable or bound energy, which he cannot.

The chemical energy in a ton of coal or barrel of oil is free energy and can be transformed into heat or mechanical work.

Much Energy Bound

But the enormous quantities of heat-energy contained in the waters of the ocean, the dusts and smoke in the air, the wastes littering the Earth—all these are bound energy, unavailable for use in producing heat or work.

Georgescu-Roegen contends that, precisely because man has always felt, however unsophisticatedly, that his life depends on scarce, irreplaceable low-entropy materials, he has nourished the hope that he would eventually discover a self-perpetuating force, a perpetual-motion machine, an inexhaustible fuel. In the past, that hope always failed.

The discovery of atomic energy has again raised hopes that man has finally found a self-perpetuating power that could unlock bound energy without limit.

But nuclear energy has thus far been anything but costless. Georgescu-Roegen says: "The shortage of electricity which plagues New York and is gradually extending to other cities should suffice to sober us up. Both the nuclear theorists and the operators of atomic plants vouch that it all boils down to a problem of cost"—and hence, from his point of view, a problem in the balance sheet of entropy.

Second Law Cited

As he sees it, economists and the society as a whole are now compelled by the growing environmental damage resulting from production to bring their thinking into line with physical principles, especially the second law of thermodynamics, which states that entropy—the amount of bound energy—of a closed system continuously increases or that the order of such a system steadily turns into disorder. Georgescu-Roegen has developed this theme in "The Entropy Law and the Economic Problem," published last year by the Harvard University Press.

Economic activity turns low-entropy materials into high-entropy wastes; and turns order into disorder. The so-called "utilities" that economic production creates blow away with the wind, or turn into junk—cars rusting in dumps.

Recycling can slow the exhaustion process, but, says, Georgescu-Roegen, "there is no free recycling just as there is no wasteless industry." It takes energy to recycle. Recycling prolongs the usability of "well-ordered" materials, but low entropy still keeps turning into high entropy.

Growth's Effect

Population and economic growth have, in the past two centuries, enormously accelerated the exhaustion of terrestrial resources. The spread of industrialization throughout the world is increasing the rate at which free energy is being used up.

This, says the Vanderbilt economist, "is the main problem for the fate of the human species."

He holds that, even with a very parsimonious use of terrestrial low entropy, the industrial phase of man's evolution will end many hundreds of millions of years before the sun ceases to support life on Earth.

Physicists estimate that the sun will provide the Earth with enough energy for another five billion years. The most worried ecologists now believe that critical earthly resources will not support existing and prospective population levels for more than another seven or eight decades. Even relatively optimistic ecologists contend that, at present rates of population growth and economic development, the needed industrial resources will suffice for only a few centuries longer.

Reversal Improbable

Georgescu-Roegen says man might continue to live by reverting to the stage of a berry-picking species but he warns that "in the light of what we know about evolution, such an evolutionary reversal does not seem probable."

In any case, he insists, the higher the rate of economic development, the faster the rate of depletion of terrestrial resources and the shorter the expected life of the human species.

Those economists, scientists, engineers and businessmen who refuse to accept this economic pessimism that makes the Rev. T. R. Malthus sound like Pollyanna put their trust in technology to save man from the exhaustion of low-entropy materials and from suicide by pollution.

Some put their hope in controlled nuclear fusion. Some would capture needed resources from outer space—first the moon. Others believe that, sooner or later, if technology is to rescue the human race, it must shift man's reliance from terrestrial to solar energy.

Georgescu-Roegen himself thinks it is "quasi-certain" that, in the struggle for survival, man will discover the means of transforming solar radiation into motor power directly.

Great Breakthrough

"Certainly," he says, "such a discovery will represent the greatest possible breakthrough for man's entropic problem, for it will bring under his command also the more abundant source of life support. Recycling and pollution purification would still consume low entropy, but not from the rapidly exhaustible stock of our globe."

Before anyone relaxes too much, however, it is well to remember that the big breakthrough that would provide enough direct use of solar energy to support the world's growing billions has not yet been made, and that the supply of low-entropic materials is shrinking fast, as industry advances.

And, around the world, pollution appears to be growing even faster. Some of the strongest resistance to environmental controls is coming from poor countries whose food supplies depend, or soon may depend, on heavy use of fertilizers, pesticides and herbicides. They see pollution as a lesser evil than hunger and the uncontrollable spread of diseases.

As last summer's United Nations conference on the human environment in Stockholm demonstrated, the world is still a long way from being prepared to accept international controls on pollution. Among the obstacles to global controls is the fear of many industries and national governments that controls will put them at a competitive disadvantage in world markets or impose excessive costs upon them.

Nevertheless, growing anxiety about environmental hazards is beginning to undermine blind faith in the dogmas of economic growth and unrestricted competition on which the optimism of classical economics was founded.

Rock Moved

Goeschenen, Switzerland (AP)—A 1,400-ton block of granite seen by tourists each year will be moved at a cost of $80,000 to make way for a superhighway, authorities announced. The rock will rest just 60 yards from its original spot where legend says the devil dropped it in anger after being outwitted by a smart Swiss.

U.S. Poles Return To Homeland

Warsaw — Polish-Americans who return here to settle have a saying: Earn it there, spend it here." It rhymes in Polish, and for an increasing number of these people, it makes sense.

Each year a few hundred members of the large but amorphous "Polonia" community in the United States leave to resettle in their homeland, attracted by a favorable rate of exchange and, to a lesser degree, by an improved political climate.

This form of immigration is not unique to Poland. Tens of thousands of Italian-Americans have returned to their villages, for example, and there are also sizable communities of those who have returned to Greece and other places.

5,000 Return

The Polish people who have returned, some 5,000 in all, are unique, however, because they are re-entering what many had come to regard as hostile Communist territory. But the attraction of living comparatively well on what would barely suffice in the United States has proved to be a powerful attraction.

Take Stanley Miller, born 65 years ago in Sierce ("a real hole, you wouldn't believe it"), about 65 miles north of Warsaw. He left with his parents at the age of 2, was raised in Detroit and worked for most of his life in Hamtramck, a Polish district of Detroit.

Tall, lean and sardonic, he came back to Poland two years ago after having retired at the age of 62 from Hamtramck's Public Works Commission. "The reason I look so good," he said, "is I've been in politics all my life — never did a bit of work."

What is it like, he was asked, living in a Communist society after six decades in the United States? "I tell the Poles I like Poland. I like the system and don't give a damn about Marx or Lenin."

Miller listed economics and health care as his main motivations for returning to Poland. "But there's also the crime situation in the states. It's all right if you live in one of those walled estates, but in the cities everybody has to be home before dark so they don't get mugged."

Cop On Every Corner
"I haven't been stopped once in Poland. There is a cop on every corner and many of them are in plain clothes, so the criminals are afraid to stop you. They're very strict here. The states can afford to have armies all over the world, but can't put a cop in every corner."

Miller gets 66 zloties to the dollar, which is three times the official rate and almost double the rate for tourists. He receives $18.50 a month in Social Security and $260 in Michigan State retirement funds.

"You can get along on $100 a month here. If you spend $200 you can live like a king," he said.

The $200 Miller spends is less than his monthly income, but it represents three times a skilled worker's wage.

Miller apparently has other funds, presumably including savings, which he keeps in a bank in the United States. He uses this money for trips out of Poland.

Have To Learn

"You have to learn how to get along in Poland," he said. "There are shortages, but if you have money and you know where to go, you can get the best veal or ham. I slip the girl at the box office an extra hundred and give the waitress 10 zloties for a glass of tea — five for the tea and five for her."

"The pace of life is also slower here. You don't have a waiter standing at your back, sticking a finger in your coffee to see if you're finished."

As a Polish resident, Miller can participate in Polish orbits (travel agency) tours. A trip to Egypt cost him 20,000 zloties. He has a picture taken with a Cairo belly dancer. "I sent that to the guys back home. They must say 'that Miller knows how to live. He's not only alive, he looks better than we do.'"

Miller will go to Miami in January for three months. Most Polish-Americans keep the bulk of their savings in the states, drawing only what they need. Usually they also retain their American citizenship.

Black Army Vet Recalls Incident At Brownsville

... It Hung Over His Head All His Life

By JACK KNEECE

(C) Washington Star-News
Washington — "I knew Brownsville was going to be bad when we got off the train and saw the signs at the beer gardens that said 'no dogs or soldiers allowed.'"

"And they were talking about white soldiers, because those signs were there when we got there," said Dorsie Willis, 66, apparently the only black veteran of the so-called "Brownsville, Tex., incident" still alive.

Dishonorable discharges were given 167 black soldiers — three companies — after an alleged midnight rampage through Brownsville in 1906. The Pentagon recently decided after reviewing records of the case to change the discharges to honorable, but said no other benefits would accrue from the action.

Willis was found in Minneapolis after a nationwide search for Brownsville veterans by Rep. August F. Hawkins, D-Calif. Willis told his story in a telephone interview, and said he would like to come to Washington and testify before Congress.

Story Differs
His tale differs markedly from what residents of Brownsville claimed in 1906. The incident is regarded by black leaders like Hawkins as "The Black Dreyfus Affair."

On Aug. 13, 1906, townspeople alleged that a group of black troops rode through town firing wildly, killing one man in the midnight rampage. Black troopers denied they had left the fort and their white officers backed them up. But President Theodore Roosevelt ordered the three companies, E, C and D, dishonorably discharged from the Army after not one man would testify about the allegations.

Willis, who is still alert and extremely articulate, said he had gone through the seventh grade as the only black student in an all-white school on the Oklahoma property of the man for whom his father worked.

Here is his story:
"As we rode the old 30-mile-an-hour train from Ft. Niobrara, Neb., to Brownsville, we heard that the 9th and 10th Cavalry had had trouble in the town in 1898. The people had sent petitions to Washington trying to keep them from coming. They did the same when they heard we were coming. Racial prejudice was much worse in those days and lynchings were commonplace.

"You think people are still fighting the Civil War now — they were really still fighting it then — particularly in those little western towns.

"Well, within 24 hours after we arrived this peg-legged woman — a white woman — claimed that one of our soldiers had tried to assault her. The mayor of the town came over to the fort and asked Maj. Penrose to form the battalion so she could pick him out.

Brother Was A Senator
"Well, Maj. Penrose — whose brother was a U.S. Senator from Pennsylvania — told the mayor he would not form the battalion.

In fact, I remember he started to shake his head at the start of the conversation. He said something like 'If I thought somebody was guilty I would form the battalion. But I don't think any of my men were involved.'

"Penrose was white but he stood by us. He said we were sure the woman would pick out somebody if the battalion was formed. He told the mayor that in the four years we were at Ft. Niobrara there had been not one such report. He said he thought it was strange that within 24 hours of arriving in Brownsville someone would make such a charge.

"The mayor kept insisting that the woman could go down the line and pick out someone and the major kept refusing. We knew the townspeople were just making it all up to get us out of Brownsville.

"I'll tell you what kind of town it was. If you were able to get a glass of beer occasionally, the people would take the glass back and break it to pieces in front of your eyes in the slop bucket. It was their way of telling you they didn't want to drink after you — their way of insulting you.

"Then they later came up with the story about the men shooting up the town. We had 13 men on guard duty and not one of them saw anybody leave the fort, which was surrounded by a four-foot brick wall.

Locked Up All Guns
"They immediately locked up all the guns — we used .30-caliber Krag-Jorgensen rifles in those days — and found that not one of them had been fired.

"I'll tell you, I wouldn't have any reason after all these years to lie — we didn't do it. They lined us up and questioned us about it. We didn't say anything because there was nothing to say.

"Roosevelt was wrong to do what he did. Anyway, next we were ordered to go to Ft. Reno, Texas. But the 13 men who were standing guard duty were ordered to remain in the Brownsville guardhouse.

"There was this one captain — forgot his name — but he said those men would probably be lynched if they were left there. The population of the town was 4,000 then and there weren't many troops. And private citizens carried guns in those days.

"So he did something unusual. He went to the telegraph and told Washington the situation. He was actually disobeying the order to take us immediately to Ft. Reno. Washington wired him back that he was to stay there with us until further notice.

"Then they sent us orders to go to Ft. Sam Houston and take the 13 men from the guardhouse along with us. This is what we finally did, and I was glad to get out of Brownsville. I understand it's a bigger town now (census figures list it at 55,000) and things are probably a lot different. But I haven't been back since.

after he went down he radioed other American fliers. "Don't come in. Enemy fire too close."

So the Fords went through the Christmas holidays thinking always of "next year" when the family might all celebrate together.

But there was no explanation of why he never wrote, or why his packages started coming back unopened.

When Leslie visited her grandmother, Marian Ford, in Dunedin, Fla., last spring, she asked if she could use a typewriter. A few minutes later, she handed her grandmother the poem.

Marian Ford said that as she fought to hold back the tears, her granddaughter looked at her and said, "Well, wouldn't it be better to know?"

On Sept. 30, 1972, a chaplain from the Naval Training Station at Orlando visited Mrs. Ford and told her that American POWs released by Hanoi a few days before reported that Cmdr. Randolph Ford had died of his wounds nine days after capture.

And for Frankie Ford, the long years of uncertainty ended.

"This is the bravest Christmas of all," she said Sunday. "Now we know."

Long Wait Ends For Daughter, 10

Orlando, Fla. (AP) — The child sat at the typewriter and pecked out a little poem. She called it "I Wish I Knew."

"Oh the skies are blue and the fields are green, there'll be some never to be seen."

"Now I know how sad it is, to wait and wait and wait and wait, and to send his package never knowing if it'll be his."

"Now I know how sad you would be too, if you never knew," Leslie Ford, 10, typed those lines last spring after packages sent to her father in a North Vietnamese prisoner of war camp started coming back unopened.

Every three months since Navy Cmdr. Randolph Ford's plane was shot down in 1968, his wife, Frankie, Leslie, and sons Danny, 13, and Curtis, 8, made up a package and sent it to him.

The Defense Department had listed the 37-year-old pilot as a prisoner of war. His family never got a letter from him, but they kept sending him packages of vitamins, bouillon cubes, chocolates and warm underwear.

Each Christmas, they included some of the hard candies he liked so much.

The Pentagon knew he survived the crash, because "I remember that one colored soldier saved his money and when he was discharged he opened a beer garden. He figured that if the people in Brownsville didn't want to serve us then we'd have our own place. The people burned it down within a week."

What was the Army like in those waning frontier days?

"Well I only earned $13 a month and every other month it was $12.75 because of 25 cents deducted for the old soldiers home."

"Some of the men in Brownsville used to cross the river into Mexico but I never crossed once, mostly because I never had any spending money."

"I asked that the Army send to my mother $8 a month as an allotment and I kept $5, or $4.75, according to whichever month it was."

"About the only thing I ever bought anyway was Bull Durham cigarette tobacco and paper — the roll-your-own kind — at 5 cents per bag."

"The Army food was very plain but I loved it. It was good. I liked Army life. I would have stayed in."

"I had enlisted in the Army in December of 1904 and my discharge was in either October or November of 1906. I remember that discharge well. It said 'Dorsie Willis is hereby discharged from the Army of the United States without honor.'

Couldn't Get Job
"When people would find out about that I couldn't get a job — and it seems like they always found out. After my discharge I first went back home to Guthrie, Oklahoma, where my father had taken us when I was about five years old from Jackson, Mississippi."

"I picked cotton for a while, then I hopped bells for a while in a hotel in Wichita, Kansas. I remember I saw the first car I ever saw in Kansas City. I don't remember what kind it was but it had a chain drive to buggy styled wheels."

"I worked as a janitor for a while in Omaha, Nebraska, and then came here in 1913 and have stayed here ever since. I got a job shining shoes in a barber shop. I've been married three times."

"The army let us keep everything that was issued to us and I wore that old uniform for a long time. We had a fur cap for the winter, another soft cap and a broad-brimmed hat for the summer."

"I've shined shoes most of my life and I've told a lot of people about Brownsville. The most money I've ever had was $2,000 I saved up once when I was young."

"You ask am I bitter? Well, let me put it to you this way. In this country a man is supposed to be innocent until proven guilty. Well I was never even tried for anything — much less proven guilty."

Hung Over My Head
"I didn't have a day in court, I think they might have done something for those 13 men on guard duty, but not me. And this thing has hung over my head my whole life. I've had to pay about $4,000 in medical bills over the years that the V.A. might have paid if I'd been honorably discharged."

"And my wife and I went out recently and bought cemetery lots. Maybe otherwise I would be eligible for a military burial."

"Roosevelt made a mistake. And some of those men — men who had pulled 17 and 18 years — had helped him capture San Juan Hill in the Spanish-American War."

"All this was a long time ago — like a dream or something. But I still remember it all. I can tell you anything about it you want to know. But the main thing is, we didn't do those people any harm."

Border Patrol Abuse Charged

By MARTIN WALDRON
Eagle Pass, Tex. — Border patrolmen and immigration inspectors here say that border patrol between Texas and Mexico has almost broken down and urge that a federal grand jury in San Diego investigate "widespread abuses" in the immigration service in Texas.

The San Diego Grand Jury has been investigating immigration procedures in California.

The Texas patrolmen say thousands of illegal Mexican aliens have been allowed by immigration officials to come into Texas to work on ranches and businesses operated by hunting and drinking friends of Border Patrol and Immigration Service officials.

Border Patrol officials acknowledge that there are many illegal Mexican aliens in Texas along the border, but denied that there was any connection between this and the hunting and fishing privileges which have been granted by ranchers to certain immigration officials.

Claims Listed
Specifically, the dissident patrol agents and immigration inspectors claimed in confidential interviews that:

—Federal prisoners are leased to favored ranches and businessmen to work for $4 a day, about a third of the prevailing wage for most ranch work.

—Several of the huge ranches operating along the border are off limits to border patrolmen searching for the illegal Mexican aliens commonly known as "wetbacks" or more simply as "wets."

—Mexican aliens hired as informants for the United States government are used as a source of cheap labor for some ranchers.

—Agents who try to enforce laws impartially find themselves in trouble.

—Hundreds, perhaps thousands, of Mexican women cross the border daily to work as maids in American homes for as little as $10 a week.

The president of the local union of American Federation of Government Employees, J. B. Hillard, said many of the same complaints have been made to the union by immigration inspectors and Border Patrol agents.

Hillard, an immigration inspector himself, said that the employees claim to have lost faith in many of their superiors.

"Because of the way higher levels of managements have treated employees over the past few years, the union has absolutely no faith that management would respond aggressively and that we would only see an attempt to cover up and protect one another in an in-house investigation," said Hillard.

The men, he said, however would make their complaints before outside investigators such as the federal grand jury now meeting in San Diego to investigate other allegations of corruption in the Immigration Service.

Complaints Denied
The complaints from the patrol agents and immigration inspectors were sweepingly denied by officials who said that they had never heard of such allegations.

Chief Patrol Agent W. S. Eatman said any employee "who lacked the guts" to make his complaints publicly should be ignored.

Hillard responded by saying, "Any information we might have to offer as a concerned union of employees will be given to investigative sources other than so-called 'in-service.' This is the only way we can feel sure there will be no cover up."

The leasing of federal prisoners to ranchers and businessmen has been going on for at least two years. Practically all the prisoners thus leased are illegal aliens from Mexico who may be needed as witnesses in upcoming court trials. The government holds the Mexican nationals as a material witnesses until trial and refuses to allow them to make bond.

"There's nothing compulsory about this work program," said Eatman. "They are given a choice. They can either wait in jail or they can take a job."

In addition to paying the workers at least $4 a day, the employer also must provide him food and a place to sleep.

On Dec. 1 of this year, there were 80 "witnesses" assigned by the Border Patrol to work for ranchers, farmers and businessmen, Eatman said.

Eatman said that the Border Patrol considers the leasing of the witnesses good business.

No Federal Jails

The federal government has no jails in this part of Texas and federal prisoners have to be kept in county and city jails. The government is charged $6 or more a day by the local jails to keep each federal prisoner.

Eatman said that he had been under the impression that the $4-a-day pay rates for leased witnesses had been set by a federal district judge. But a search of his files failed to turn up the letter which Eatman thought the judge had written.

Eatman denied allegations that certain ranchers are favored in this program.

The patrol chief also said it was not true that the prisoners were assigned in large groups to the ranches where Immigration Service and Border Patrol officials are allowed to hunt free.

Several border patrolmen said that one of their associates, George Groomer, had fallen from favor because he had led a raid to search for "wetbacks" on the Moody ranch, a huge cattle spread which borders the Rio Grande near Del Rio.

"The Moody ranch had not been raided in years because the bosses go there to hunt," said a patrolman.

Hunting leases in this part of Texas, where deer weigh up to 200 pounds, cost about $300 to several thousand dollars a year.

"The word was out in the patrol that some of the district and regional bosses also came out and hunted," the agent said. "A patrolman who didn't want his name in the little black book left the Moody ranch and some others strictly alone."

Patrolmen said that the protected ranches included the Moody ranch, the Mitchell ranch and the Anachaco ranch.

36 Arrested
When Groomer led a raid on the Moody ranch in early September of this year, 36 illegal aliens from Mexico were arrested there.

"He went back and we later arrested 19 more," said an associate.

Eatman, the chief patrol agent, issued a blanket denial that any ranchers have been given favored treatment.

"Every outfit has a few sorry SOB's," he said, referring to the complaining patrolmen. "I don't suppose you'll tell me who they were?"

As for regional and district officials coming to southwest Texas to hunt, Eatman said he had never heard of it.

Eatman said it was absolutely untrue that the raid on the Moody ranch in September was an "unauthorized" raid as several patrolmen had described it in interviews.

"It was just the opposite," Eatman said. "What happened was that Proctor (Jim Proctor, assistant chief patrol agent) overheard two of the men saying they thought there were some wets down on the Moody ranch but there was some sort of coverup, and when Proctor heard this he got mad."

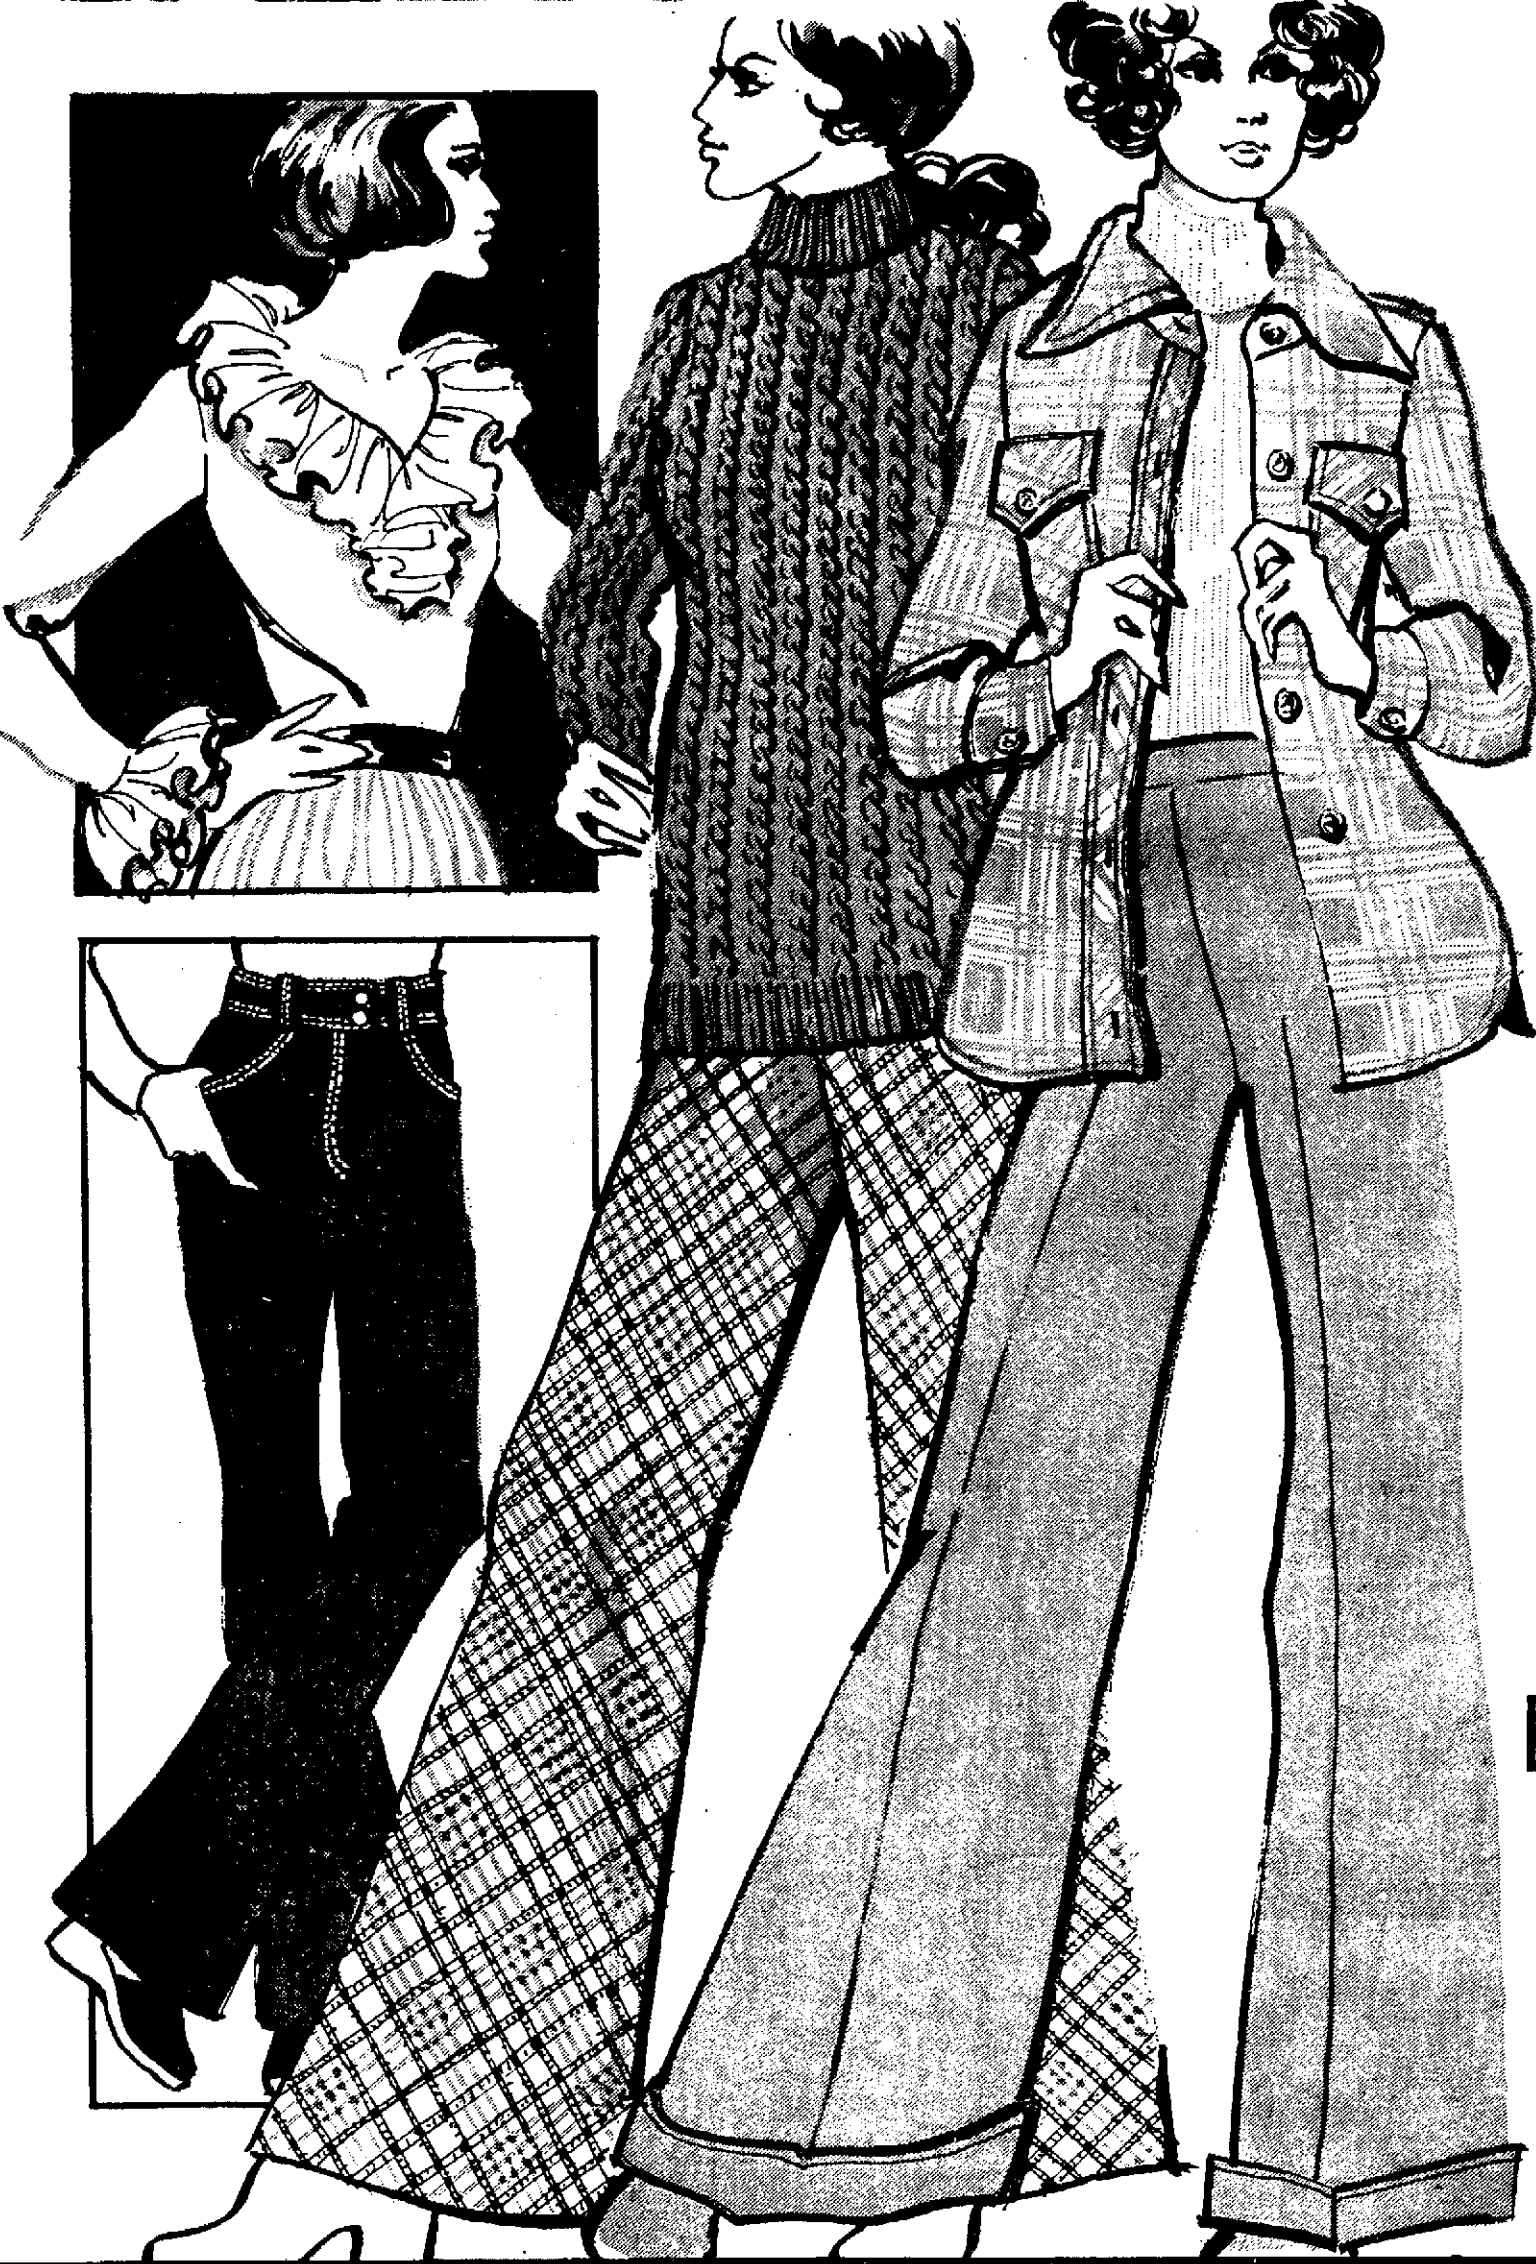

"Proctor chewed them out and told them to conduct a raid immediately, to go that day, and the next day and the next day."

Contact With Children Essential, Author Says

MRS. HAMILTON . . . writes handbook.

By PATTY BEUTLER
Star Staff Writer

To write books for children one has to keep being involved with children, believes the author of a new preschool curriculum guide printed in Lincoln for national distribution.

And Darlene Hamilton has done exactly that.

The Fremont native who moved to Lincoln from Kansas only last May began working with children at the age of 12 when she assisted her mother with vacation church school three weeks every summer. By 16 she was teaching Sunday School herself.

Following graduation from Iowa State University with a major in child development and "idealistic goals" Mrs. Hamilton leaped right into the field by becoming supervisor of a day-care center in a slum area of Louisville, Ky.

Marriage to Harold E. Hamilton, presently pastor of Lincoln's First Lutheran Church, brought about an interest in teaching church nursery school. Because curriculum materials were so outdated, Mrs. Hamilton wrote her own course and one thing led to another.

A steady contributor to a national publication for Lutheran church school teachers, Mrs. Hamilton went on to write in 1950 the first church school course for three-year-olds ever written by a major denominational group.

Authored Books

After authoring several books and handbooks for use in church nursery schools, Mrs. Hamilton became involved in the Headstart programs because of her "concern with the kinds of things happening to children in baby-sitting situations today."

A substitute Headstart teacher, she taught a career development class for Headstart aides and assistant teachers to "try to excite people to a beginning."

Among the lessons Mrs. Hamilton stressed to her class was the need for teachers to be "realistic." A teacher's guidebook, she explained, must recognize that in every situation, no matter what the teacher's training, there are times when the teacher just "slides through the day" with a minimal performance.

For this reason Mrs. Hamilton and her students prepared a handbook that would encourage teachers to plan a curriculum for more than one short period at a time. Instead of planning a little and gliding through the rest of the day, teachers should "feel the excitement of children's learning continuously," she believes.

Selected By Group

With many years in the field of nursery school teaching and curriculum planning, Mrs. Hamilton was selected by the Kansas Association for the Education of Young Children to help write a guide for creative preschool teaching.

After three years the resulting handbook, coordinating the efforts of 10 experienced people in preschool education, was published in a revised edition for presentation at the annual convention of the National Association for the Education of Young Children in Atlanta, Ga., last November.

Mrs. Hamilton, who displayed the manual at the convention, reported that "a business operation began from this point" as there were tremendous demands for the book from all over the country.

Most of the orders have come in from university department heads who want the book as resource material for student teachers. But, added Mrs. Hamilton, seasoned teachers are also requesting the handbook as a means of augmenting many of their much-used ideas. The "total market appeal" has much surprised the numerous authors.

'Unique'

The 480-page "Resources for Creative Preschool Teaching" with its easy reference and scanning for teachers is "unique," feels Mrs. Hamilton. An illustrated capsule review of subjects in the appendix and a format that allows the chapters to be removed individually from the book-proper are other features she pointed out.

Although she has seen a great need for this kind of book, Mrs. Hamilton does not find it a "solution and end in itself." The total responsibility for selection of materials to be used in class is left to the individual teacher, she added.

Because the demands of the preschool child are so great many young teachers give up the profession too easily, believes Mrs. Hamilton. "We need people to stay in the field," she remarked, and she hopes her manual will be an encouraging factor.

Christmas Of 1944 Is Recalled

Bastogne, Belgium (AP)—The message of the Christmas holidays in Bastogne is one of both gaiety and serenity, but memories here remain fresh of a Christmas 28 years ago when the German Army was a messenger of death.

Walking through the streets of the town of 7,000 with its colored lights, carols and a manger in the main square, a visitor would hardly guess that in 1944 people huddled in their cellars on the eve of apparent annihilation.

The Germans had surrounded the town, held by a few hundred American soldiers. The cellars holding the 2,000 or 3,000 Belgian civilians had no water or electricity.

Lasted 3 Weeks

This lasted three weeks, leaving the town in smoldering ruins before the 101st Airborne Division reinforced the tiny American force and broke the siege.

Lea Doms, 76, a milliner, recalled, "I ran into refugees from Luxembourg who said the Germans were coming, burning and killing on their way. When the first shells fell, all houses around were afire. We dived into the cellar where we spent the next three weeks. Fifteen hundred people were crammed in the cellars of the convent next door, together with wounded U. S. soldiers.

"We kept seeing the same two U.S. tanks rolling back and forth across town. We learned later they were trying to impress the Germans, making as if there were plenty of tanks around.

"But the Americans were nervous," Mrs. Doms said. "One day I left the cellar with a candle. They burst into the house, claiming I was a spy making signals to the Germans.

"Once a shell explosion covered me with earth. My husband was so shaken he started crying. I did not realize.

"Once we tried to leave town. We didn't go far. On the road to Neufchateau we saw five or six dead GI's in front of a barbed wire roadblock. We also saw frozen dead German soldiers, one with a sausage in his mouth, another killed while shaving himself, still holding his razor near his face.

Real Sports

"Americans were real sports in Bastogne. You can say what you want. Bastogne people do not forget."

Charles Govaerts, 59, the only doctor who remained in Bastogne during the battle, said: "The airborne guys were wonderful, the finest U.S. soldiers I ever saw. When I hear people say something against them, I get mad. They were all giants, quiet giants. They had great courage, but did not show off.

"One airborne was an Indian. He used to play with our kids."

Maurice Nizet, a stone cutter, was 15 at Christmas in 1944.

"They were real cowboys," he said of U.S. troops. "Big children. They fought like lions.

"I saw the same GI lying for three days and two nights between snow-covered stone blocks in our yard, watching Germans only 200 yards away."

"We thought he was frozen to death," Nizet said. "My father found a bottle of brandy and whispered 'cognac.' The 'dead' soldier and six others jumped on the bottle, coming from God knows where.

They Were Freezing

"These guys were freezing. They wanted firewood and axed furniture from abandoned houses. Some people complained. What would we have done in the same situation?

"I laughed when I saw the film on Bastogne. Where you see Americans dancing at Christmas. I can swear to you they did not think of dancing. They had funeral faces. One day the house on the other side of the street was hit. Soldiers showed me the most horrible thing of my life — the head of one of their comrades on one side, his body on the other, another mangled body in a corner."

He showed his small cellar to newsmen. "Imagine, there were 27 people stacked here, including a hysteric and a dying man, with no water nor electricity," he said. "When shells burst we were pressed against each other. Most of us had typhus and lice. Some people even died from typhus.

"But the most extraordinary Christmas souvenir I have is that of the first parachute dropping of the siege," Nizet said. "My father and I were walking up a steep street, carrying a big piece of beef.

Handel's "Messiah" Has Interesting History

By Harold C. Schonberg
(c) 1972 New York Times News Service
New York —This is the season of "Messiah" performances and "Messiah" sing-ins, and articles about "Messiah," as it has been every year at this time back to 1742, the year that the most popular choral work ever composed received its premiere. Handel had finished it the previous year, however. Stories about its composition are part of the mythology of music: How Handel received the text from the o'erweening Charles Jennens; how he locked himself into his Dublin apartment and composed "Messiah" in 24 days, from Aug. 22 to Sept. 14, 1741; how he was guided by the hand of the Lord; how the manuscript, written in fury of creation (one look at it is ample testimony), is bedewed with tears; how Handel ignored food, ignored sleep, to get his music on paper.

What was Handel doing in Dublin? He had accepted the invitation of the Lord Lieutenant to give a subscription series of oratorios, including a new one (which turned out to be "Messiah") for a local charity. Things had not been going well in London for the composer; his operatic enterprises had failed, and he was bitter about it. In Dublin he would be able to catch his breath, as it were, and take a fresh look at the future.

Word got out that the great Handel had a new oratorio in readiness. The publicity mills — there were those at the time, and Handel knew well how to make full use of them — started inundating Dublin with titillating gossip. Information was fed to the press. The first notice was carried in the Dublin Journal on March 27, 1742: "For relief of the prisoners in the several gaols, and for the support of Mercer's Hospital in Stephen's Street and of the Charitable Infirmary on the Inns Quay, on Monday the 12th of April, (wrong by a day), will be performed at the Musick Hall in Fishamble Street, Mr Handel's new grand oratorio, called The Messiah." Tickets were priced at half a guinea; and, as was his custom, Handel would, during entr'actes, play his own compositions on the organ.

The public rehearsals, starting April 8, confirmed the gossip. "Messiah" was a masterpiece. The Dublin News-Letter stated the success of the new work, "which in the opinion of the best judges, far surpasses anything of that nature which has been performed in this or any other kingdom." No wonder everybody was anxious to get to the actual premiere, on April 13. The sponsors knew that they demand for seats far exceeded the capacity of the hall. Ladies were urged, in public advertisements, "not to come with hoops this day;" and "the gentleman are desired to come without their swords."

Reviews were ecstatic. "The sublime the grand, and the tender, adapted to the most elevated, majestic and moving words, conspired to transport and charm the ravished heart and ear."

Handel returned to London and was in charge of the first performance there on March 23, 1743. It was at this performance that the king introduced the custom of standing for the "Hallelujah" chorus. "Messiah" was the backbone of Handel's subsequent oratorio seasons, and the work also was played all over England. On May 15, 1754, Handel conducted it for the last time.

The last piece of music that Handel heard was the "Messiah" performance in London on April 6, 1759. Mortally ill, he attended the event, went home, took to his bed and died eight days later.

Former Coeds Are Brides

The marriage of Miss Mary Jeanne Smiley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William W. Smiley, to Gary Lee Jewell of Fremont, son of Mr. and Mrs. Keith Jewell of Albion, took place on Saturday, Dec. 23. The 3:30 o'clock ceremony was solemnized at Westminster Presbyterian Church by the Rev. Robert E. Palmer.

Miss Susan Smiley attended her sister as maid of honor, and the bridesmaid was Miss Karen Frischmann of Moline, Ill.

Capt. Duane Jewell of Tacoma, Wash., served his brother as best man, and James L. Paulson was groomsman. The corps of ushers included James Christo, Dennis Bohm of Norfolk and George Christo, Jr., of Albion.

The bride selected an antique white gown fashioned of silk crepe for her wedding. Arabesque lace accented the wedding band collar and cuffed the full Bishop sleeves; and an applique of the lace created a pinafore effect on the bodice front. The lace was repeated to encircle the Empire waistline, from which descended a softly gathered skirt. A bandeau of Venice lace held in place her cottillion-length veil, and she carried a cascade of pink roses, holly and Phalaenopsis orchids.

Mr. Jewell and his bride will reside in Fremont.

A graduate of the University of Nebraska, where she is a member of Alpha Chi Omega sorority, the bride teaches in the Fremont public schools. Mr. Jewell has completed four years of service with the U.S. Marine Corps and has attended the University of Nebraska, where he is a member of Alpha Gamma Rho fraternity. He currently is associated with Postal Finance in Fremont, where he is an assistant manager.

Afternoon Ceremony

Marilyn Schuette and John C. Abel were married at a 3 o'clock ceremony which took place at the home of Mr. Abel's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George P. Abel, on Sunday afternoon, Dec. 24. The Rev. Dr. Otis Young of the First Plymouth Congregational Church solemnized the service.

Following a wedding trip to Florida where they will attend the Orange Bowl, Mr. Abel and his bride will reside in Lincoln.

The bride, a former student at the University of Nebraska, currently serves as executive secretary to the president of Bryan Memorial Hospital.

Mr. Abel is a graduate of the University of Arizona, now is vice president of the Kerford Limestone Company in Weeping Water.

On Saturday afternoon, Dec. 23, the wedding of Miss Paulette Jane Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn E. Johnson of Dorchester, and Mark Perry DeWitt, son of Mr. and Mrs. Mark A. DeWitt of Hastings, took place at the United Methodist Church in Dorchester. The Rev. Ellsworth Hughes solemnized the 12:30 o'clock ceremony.

The threesome of bridal attendants included Miss Kathy Klasek of Kearney, the maid of honor; bridesmatron Mrs. Mike Moore; and Miss Faythe DeWitt of Hastings, the bridesmaid.

Max DeWitt of Hastings served his brother as best man, and the groomsmen and ushers were Rex T. Johnson of Colorado Springs, Colo., Bruce Mahoney of Hastings, and Jim Klasek of Western.

For her wedding the bride appeared in a gown of Angel Mist and English Galloon lace. The lace fashioned the yoke of the Empire bodice, and was repeated to ornament the ruffled Victorian collar and to accent the fitted sleeves. Beneath the lace-encircled waistline, the A-line skirt was ornamented with a deep, hemline ruffle of the lace. Back interest was given the gown by a delicate satin bow which was caught at waist height. A bonnet of the ruffled lace held to the head her elbow-length veil, and she carried a cascade of roses in the red and pink shades, accented with white carnations and pompon chrysanthemums.

The bride is a graduate of the University of Nebraska where she majored in elementary education, and she currently is teaching at the elementary school in Belgrade. Mr. DeWitt also was graduated from the University of Nebraska where he majored in economics. He presently is careering at the Sportsman Steak House in Hastings.

Christmas Decorations Renew Fond Memories

Even after the packages have been distributed and unwrapped this Christmas morning, the festive tree, still adorned with its lovely ornaments, will remain the focal point of holiday gatherings.

For many families, the ornaments placed on the Christmas tree year after year have much sentimental value. However, there are other holiday decorations which also help to bring back fond memories of Christmas days gone by.

The holiday decor at the home of Mrs. W. D. Zimmerman is a perfect example of the memories brought back each time the ornaments are unpacked and displayed for the Christmas season. The traditions at the Zimmerman home span the decades—one of the modes of decoration has been employed there for the past 15 years, and another dates back some 74 years.

Surrounding the base of the beautiful tree — situated atop a grand piano and ornamented with birds and musical instruments, indicative of the family's interests—is a virtual Christmas wonderland.

The items in the display—a collection of Christmas scenes employing animals, angels, snow people, and many other fascinating items, as well as unusual rocks collected by family members—are arranged each year by one of Mrs. Zimmerman's daughters, Mrs. Dorothy Oberheu. Many of the hundreds of delightful figures come from such spots as Canada, Alaska, Germany, and Ireland; and there are also many antique decorations, such as a wooden Santa Claus which is at least 100 years old.

The display takes at least three days each year to assemble, according to Mrs. Oberheu.

While the Christmas village contains many fond memories for her daughter, Mrs. Zimmerman's remembrances of Christmas days gone by also are renewed each time a miniature doll house and barn are brought from their storage places.

The barn was constructed by Mrs. Zimmerman's father for his daughter's first Christmas, some 74 years ago—and the doll house also was a gift from the father to his children in the year 1902.

The father, Prof. Carl Haase—one of the early music professors at Concordia College in Seward, where he also served as dean of music—made all of the little toys by hand, carving the figures from cigar boxes with a pen knife. Additions were made each year, when Santa Claus brought tiny display objects to Prof. Haase's daughter and his son, Erich, who now resides in Chicago, Ill.

The barn featured a lumber wagon, hay rack, dray, milk wagon, and many horses with real hair; and it was connected to the doll house by a network of bridges, trains and tracks.

Mrs. Zimmerman's father constantly made repairs on the barn and doll house—the latter complete with an extension table with leaves, rocking chairs, stairways, and many other miniature furnishings — and he continued adding new pieces to the traditional holiday collection. Through the years, he even constructed a new wing, which included a kitchen and bathroom, on the doll house.

LUMINARIOS—A CHRISTMAS LIGHTING EXPERIENCE

Christmas Day, 1972, finally has arrived. Christmas is all about us, particularly in the joyful traditions of the holiday season—evergreens, lighted candles and lights, colorful decorations, gaily wrapped packages, garlands and tinsel, cookies and candies and family gatherings.

There are other signs of Christmas, as well, including the sentiments of love, peace, joy, hope, and goodwill toward all men. Those sentiments are what Christmas is all about—but they are just as applicable throughout the entire year.

Christmas also is a time when one decorates his home, both inside and out. While most of those projects are undertaken by individual families, certain residents of the Lincolnshire area embarked on a unique decorating project this year—a project which, hopefully, will become a neighborhood tradition.

Borrowing from a custom most commonly associated with our Mexican neighbors, four families who make their homes on the Sussex Place Circle decorated their street and driveways with luminarios, the beautiful, yet simple, lights made by placing lighted candles in paper bags.

The neighbors gathered just a few nights ago for the Christmas lighting ceremony. Participating in the experiment were Mr. and Mrs. John Partridge and family, Dr. Leonard Lee and family, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Stephenson and family, and Mr. and Mrs. Roger Olson and family.

Winter Weddings Solemnized

At a 7 o'clock ceremony on Sunday evening, Dec. 24, the marriage of Miss Judy V. Fuller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Fuller of Palmyra to Jerry W. Rayburn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roland Rayburn, took place at the College View Seventh-Day Adventist Church. The lines of the candlelight service were solemnized by Elder D. D. Holt.

Mrs. Mike Randall attended the bride as matron of honor, and completing the bridal entourage were Miss Fauna Rankin and Miss Goldie Beck, the bridesmaids.

Donovan Reeve served Mr. Rayburn as best man, and the groomsmen and ushers included Gary Giesen, David Fuller of Palmyra, Steve Berthelson, and Walter Roder.

Peau taffeta and Venise lace fashioned the gown chosen by the bride for her wedding. The lace formed a panel which extended from the lace-contoured mandarin collar of the Empire bodice to the hem of the softly gathered A-line silhouette skirt; and the lace was repeated to ornament the cuffs of the fitted sleeves and the cummerbund which encircled the waistline. A bandeau of the lace held to the head her lace-edged mantilla of cotillion length, and she carried a bouquet of red sweetheart roses and white carnations.

The bride is a former student at Union College. Mr. Rayburn is a junior at the University of Nebraska.

The College View Seventh-Day Adventist Church was the site of the Sunday afternoon, Dec. 24, wedding of Miss Glenda Jean Felton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Felton, and Kenneth Richard Downing, son of Mr. and Mrs. Laurence R. Downing. The fathers of the bride and the bridegroom officiated at the 2 o'clock ceremony.

Mrs. Clinton Washam of Keeney Tex., and Miss Charla Felton served the sister as the honor attendants, and Miss Karen Downing, sister of the bridegroom, was the bridesmaid.

Laurence A. Downing attended his brother as best man, and the groomsmen and ushers were David Downing, Ronald Felton, Dwain Leonhardt of Loma Linda, Calif., and Roger Johnson.

Imported white velvet and Venetian lace fashioned the gown selected by the bride for her wedding. Above the A-line silhouette skirt, the Empire bodice was accented with bands of the lace which also ornamented the wedding band collar and the deep cuffs of the Camelot sleeves. The lace was repeated to border her chapel-length mantilla of imported English silk illusion, and she carried a bouquet of white orchids.

The bride, a former student at Union College, is a graduate of the Kettering College of Medical Arts in Dayton, Ohio, where she received an associate degree in nursing. Mr. Downing is a junior at Union College where he is majoring in religious education.

Abby: advise his mother to put aside the "witch kit"

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are very happily married, and the possible threat to our marriage is his mother. She is a very interfering divorcee with plenty of time on her hands, and I know she has never liked me.

The problem: she claims to be a witch who can put spells on people. She meets with other members of the occult and they hold seances and claim to be able to communicate with spirits of the dead. She has all sorts of paraphernalia related to her witchcraft, and I am scared to death of this woman when she goes into her chants and trances.

I am expecting a child, Abby, and I don't want her in my house unless she acts like a normal person and refrains from going into her witchcraft act.

My husband says it is all a lot of garbage — he doesn't believe in any of it, and I am silly to worry about it. I say she could be a real witch. I leave it to you.

WORRIED
IN MASSACHUSETTS

DEAR WORRIED: I don't know if she's a real witch or a phony one, but your fears are real, which is more important. Simply tell her she is welcome to visit if she puts aside the witch kit—otherwise, you will see her in the next world.

CONFIDENTIAL TO MY READERS: Have a very merry Christmas. And if you drink, don't drive, so that others may have a merry Christmas, too. Love and peace, ABBY.

Problems? Trust Abby. For a personal reply, write to ABBY, BOX 9700, L.A., CALIF. 90069 and enclose a stamped, addressed envelope.

Newlyweds Are Honored At Postnuptial Courtesy

For a few hours during the weekend just past, thoughts of the holiday were temporarily put aside at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Addison Kohout. Instead, all attention was focused on a very special couple — the Kohout's son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Dan Scadden of Boulder, Colo., whose marriage took place in Boulder on Saturday, Dec. 16. On Saturday evening, Dec. 23, Mr. and Mrs. Scadden were the guests of honor at a party for which Mr. and Mrs. Kohout served as host and hostess.

Following their holiday visit in Lincoln, Mr. and Mrs. Scadden will take up residence in Huntington Beach, Calif., where Mr. Scadden will attend graduate school at Long Beach State College.

Mrs. Scadden, who is the former Miss Barbara Kohout, attended the Lincoln School of Commerce. Mr. Scadden, the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Scadden who resided in Boulder, Colo., was graduated from the University of Colorado in Boulder, and he received his Master's degree from the University of Northern Colorado in Greeley.

Poll: People Agree On Goals, Doubt Success

By LOUIS HARRIS

At this Christmas season of 1972, the American people have rarely been so united as to the national goals they want to see attained, but at the same time so doubtful that such goals will be achieved in their own lifetime. The public is most optimistic about future progress in the field of racial opportunity, but it is most pessimistic about the prospect of a "life without constant tensions" or achieving "an end to unemployment."

Over the past four years, the trend of public opinion has been marked by a sharp rise in agreement over what people would like to see happen, but also by a general decline in public expectation that these key objectives will be realized any time soon. Whether or not this is simply common-sense realism or a measure of rising frustrations, taken as a whole they represent in many ways the enigma of life in America in the 1970's.

In late November, a nationwide cross section of 1,505 households was probed in depth about the country's national aspirations and public expectations for fulfilling them. Here are the highpoints from this special Harris Survey:

—Close to a unanimous 99% of the American people agree that achieving "a decline in violence in the U.S." would be something they would like to see happen. Yet no more than 33% think such a decline will actually happen in their lifetime compared with a much larger 57% who think violence will continue at present levels.

Louis Harris
Unity Rising

—The number of persons who say they would like to see "life without constant tensions" has risen from 86% to 93% since 1968. At the same time, the number who believe such a condition can be realized has dropped from 18% to 9% over the same period. By the same token, whose regard tension as a constant ingredient of modern life in this country have risen from 73% to 83%.

—People are more optimistic about reaching agreements with the Russians and Chinese to reduce the threat of war than in achieving "an end to all wars in the world." When read a list of things they might "like to see happen or not," an overwhelming 97% answer in the affirmative to the attractiveness of agreements with the Russians and the Chinese to end wars. By 45-39%, a plurality say such an accord with the Russians "will happen in your lifetime"; although, by 40-43%, people doubt the prospect of a similar agreement with China.

Permanent Peace

The number who says they would like to see permanent peace has gone from 96% to 99% in four years, but the number who think "an end to all wars" can be reached in their lifetime has slipped from 52% in 1968 to only 11% of the public today. Those convinced a world without war will never be won have risen from 55% to 80% of the nation.

The implication of these results is that big-power control of nuclear war and even of conflicts such as Vietnam may be more attainable than outbreaks of hostilities such as that between India and Pakistan just this past year.

—The impact of relatively high rates of unemployment over the past few years is evident in the fact that while those who would like to see "an end to unemployment" have grown from 89% to 95% in four years, the number who think full employment will become a reality has fallen from 39% to 12%. The number who think unemployment will not be solved in their lifetime has risen from 42% to 81%.

—The major exception to an overall pattern of rising aspirations and diminishing expectations is in the area of race relations. The number who want to see "equality for blacks" has risen from 74% to 89%, a jump of 15 points in four years. At the same time, those who think such equality for blacks will happen "in your lifetime" has gone up from 45% to 51%.

Racial Issue

To go right to the heart of the racial matter, the survey asked whether the public looked forward to "desegregation of schools" as well as "desegregation of housing." By 73-19%, Americans say they want to see schools desegregated and by a comparable 71-22%, Americans also say they favor open housing.

By 53-33%, a majority believe that school desegregation will become a reality in their lifetime and, by 52-34%, that housing desegregation will also take place. By and large, blacks and whites are equally convinced that both objectives will be realized.

The cross section was asked: "Let me read you some things some people have said they would like to see happen. Would you like to see (read list) happen or not?" and "Now let me ask you if you think each of these things will happen in your lifetime."

HOPES FOR FUTURE AND THEIR PROSPECTS		1972	1968
An end to all wars	Want	99%	96%

Will happen		55%	X
Desegregation of housing	Want	71%	X

These results, of course, point up the very real doubts that beset America on this Christmas of 1972. But they also demonstrate that it is hard to diminish the very high national goals the American people have set for themselves.

Defaults Leave Government Owning Rail Lines

(c) Washington Star-News
Washington — The federal government is finding itself being pushed by default into the railroad business—and by at least some accounts it is taking virtually no interest in the operation of some of the railroads it now owns.

Although for many years the government has owned and operated the Alaska Railroad, it actually began building a mini-railroad empire a year ago when it quietly "nationalized" a small but profitable railroad in northeastern Pennsylvania, the Lehigh & New England.

Since then the government has acquired all or a substantial interest in six more railroads—ranging in size from the 8-mile Springfield Terminal Railroad Co. in Massachusetts to the heavily traveled New York & Long Branch Railroad which carries commuters in Northern New Jersey. And it expects to add yet another to the list soon—the Lehigh & Hudson River. Further, it may sell the earlier-acquired Lehigh & New England soon for $3.5 million to the bankrupt Lehigh Valley.

The government's activities in the eastern railroad business stem from a rash of bankruptcies. In each case the bankrupt railroad defaulted on a loan, repayment of which had been guaranteed by the federal government under a five-year program that began in 1969.

As of last June 30, the federal government had paid off about $63.3 million in defaulted loans, out of about $244 million guaranteed under the program.

As a result, each time it paid off a loan it acquired the collateral and in some cases this turned out to be a batch of stock certificates in another railroad.

In this manner, the government has acquired: Lehigh & New England, Northern Railroad, Vermont & Massachusetts Railroad, Stony Brook Railroad Corp., Springfield Terminal Railroad Co., New York & Long Branch and Buffalo Creek Railroad.

All of them are subsidiaries of larger bankrupt railroads or are operated under lease to a larger line. At least four—the Northern, Vermont &

Massachusetts, Stony Brook and Springfield Terminal—came out of the bankruptcy of the Boston & Maine Railroad alone.

Government Sole Owner

In only one of the cases of the B&M Roads—the Springfield Terminal—is the government the sole owner. It owns 65% of the Northern, 36.5 of V&M and 60.2 of Stony Brook. Two—V&M and Stony Brook—pay dividends which the government apparently isn't receiving as a result of a court order.

Stock in all three of the partly owned New England railroads is publicly held, although there isn't much of it around.

One Justice Department lawyer familiar with railroad bankruptcies, said the government was taking an interest in how its properties are being run.

He said the government is actively participating in talks with the state of New Jersey for the sale of a 50% interest in the New York & Long Branch (which had been jointly owned by the bankrupt Central Railroad of New Jersey and the bankrupt Penn Central Transportation Co.). Further, he added, "I took a ride on that this summer. The railroad really needs work... Our rail car just ran off the track at a switch."

The government appears anxious to dispose of those railroads—except for the Alaska Railroad—where it can.

Gesturing to a visitor, Ingram added: "They're all for sale—you want to buy one?"

Observations Find Star, Pulsar Are Orbiting Each Other

New York Times
New York — Through observations with an earth-orbiting satellite and various ground-based telescopes it has been discovered that an ordinary star and a pulsar, or pulsing object of extreme density are waiting together through space far out in the constellation Hercules.

The finding was hailed as of major importance in that it provides a variety of opportunities for further discoveries in what is widely regarded as the most exotic and challenging field of astrophysics.

This is the area dealing with pulsars and other extreme concentrations of matter. Among the latter are the hypothetical "black holes" whose density is so great that light cannot escape their super-strong gravity.

From observation of the star and its companion, visible only as an emitter of X-ray pulses, it has been possible for the first time to determine directly the mass of a pulsar, or neutron star.

Heavy As Sun
The pulsar, though only a few miles in diameter and spinning every one and a quarter seconds, weighs roughly as much as the sun. Such an object, formed of atoms crushed into a tight disk of neutrons, would be so dense that one cubic inch would weigh billions of tons.

Binary (two-star) systems have in the past proved one of the most useful tools in astronomy. They make it possible to determine the mass of one of the two companions if the relative motions of the objects and the mass of the other star are known.

The calculations make use of the laws of motion that determine any form of orbital flight. In this case the two stars are, so to speak, orbiting one another.

The disclosures were made at the Sixth Texas Symposium on Relativistic Astrophysics. The conference is so named because the earliest ones were held in Texas.

Dr. Harvey Tananbaum of American Science and Engineering, the firm in Cambridge, Mass., that has been analyzing X-ray observations from the Uhuru satellite, said the pulse rate of the pulsar was once every 1.2378206 seconds.

Increased Speed
This is taken to be its spin rate, and it was found, from January to July of this year, that it speeded up by four and a half millionths of a second.

The better-known pulsars, which announce their presence with radio pulses, tend to slow down, rather than accelerate, although Dr. Frank D. Drake of Cornell University reported some erratic changes in this regard.

Apparently the radio pulsars are neutron stars spinning in isolation. Their spinning magnetic fields, not being symmetrical to the spin axis, throw off material in a way that generates the radio pulses.

In this way they lose energy and slow down.

The X-ray pulsars on the other hand, are circling close to a companion star. The pulsar's gravity field is so intense that it sucks material out of its companion.

As this material falls into the pulsar, it generates X-rays, seen as pulses if the spin is not symmetrical to this process. The material adds to the pulsar's rotational momentum, and it speeds up.

Suspicion Confirmed
Because the pulses of this X-ray pulsar vanish every 1.7 days, there was a suspicion that it was periodically being eclipsed by a companion star. Close to the inferred site of the pulsar was HZ Hercules, long known to be a variable star.

Hence, as reported by Dr. Neta Bahcall of Princeton University, the Wise Observatory in Israel began

Peron Prefers Home In Spain

Madrid (UPI) — Former Argentine President Juan D. Peron returned to his home in exile for the Christmas holidays and indicated he was in no hurry to make another political mission to his homeland.

"I have come back to Spain because I can live here better and more tranquilly than in Argentina," Peron said.

Peron, 77, was accompanied by his wife, Isabel Martinez, and his personal secretary, Jose Lopez Rega.

Legal Pot Urged

St. Paul, Minn. (UPI) — Gov. Wendell Anderson's Advisory Council on Drug Abuse recommended legalizing marijuana for adults.

close observation of the star and found that it, too, exhibited a brightness cycle of 1.7 days.

Apparently X-rays from the pulsar cause the nearest part of its companion to glow brilliantly as the pulsar flies its orbit. The star therefore becomes brightest when the pulsar is on this side of it, then suddenly dims as the pulsar briefly eclipses that bright region.

Working Parent May Be Eligible For New Tax Break

By LYNNE OLSON
Associated Press Writer

If you're a working parent, you may be eligible for a new, little-known tax break on child care when you file your 1972 federal income tax return.

Under a clause in the 1971 tax law, which just went into effect this year, working couples and single parents can deduct up to $400 a month, or $4,800 a year, the costs of child care and household help.

Previously, the maximum deduction for child care was $900 a year and applied only to working women who made less than $6,000 annually.

Inside, Outside
According to the new statute, for care in the home you may deduct the wages of a babysitter — or a housekeeper, cook or maid if her duties involve child care. The law points out, however, that the salaries of a chauffeur, bartender or gardener may not be deducted.

If your child is cared for outside your home — in a nursery school, summer camp or day care center — the maximum deduction for child care is $200 a month, including transportation costs between your house and the place where the care is given.

But another $200 can be deducted monthly for household help, as long as its purpose is to free the mother to work.

If you have two children, up to $300 can be deducted for outside care and $100 for household help.

With three or more children, up to $400 can be deducted for care outside the home, but nothing for a maid or housekeeper.

You're eligible for the deduction if you have children under the age of 15 or dependents over 15 who are physically or mentally unable to take care of themselves.

As with any tax regulation, there are several limitations. In the case of a couple, both parents must work for money; neither can be a volunteer. Work, however, can be done at home as long as income is gained from it.

All child care and household help records must be kept and the couple must file a joint return, using the long form and listing all deductions.

Averaging Prohibited
Four hundred dollars is the maximum that can be spent in any one month. In other words, you cannot spend $600 in January and $200 in February, then average the two months' costs to $400 a month.

If the two of you earn over $18,000 a year, your child-care deduction is reduced proportionately. You can figure the reduction by subtracting $1 from the deduction for each $2 earned over $18,000.

If your combined incomes exceed $27,000, you're not eligible for any deductions.

A spokesman for the Tax Corp. of America, the second-largest tax preparation service in the country, says he thinks it will help working mothers. His company has been receiving many inquiries from women about the deduction, he says.

"As more and more women find out about it," he adds, "more and more are going back to work."

Britten D. Richards, Bloomington, Ind., attorney and executive director of the National Association of Married Working Couples, isn't so sure.

It Wouldn't Pay
Pointing out that the wage ceiling for a single parent is the same as for the combined incomes of husband and wife, Richards says it wouldn't pay many wives to go to work because their added incomes would make the couples ineligible for the deduction.

Single parents have much more of an advantage under the new statute than do married couples, he says.

But, he adds, "despite its defects, married women are certainly better off with the new deduction than with the old."

Syrian Head Announces New Cabinet

Beirut (AP) — President Hafez Assad of Syria announced Sunday the formation of a 31-man cabinet, the biggest ever in Syria and its 72nd since it gained independence from France 27 years ago.

Damascus Radio said the cabinet, under Premier Mahmoud Ayoubi, kept the members of the leftists coalition that steered the country into a less radical course in Middle East politics for the past 25 months.

The ruling Baathist party took more than half the posts, while the rest were distributed among other leftist and independent parties.

The new formation indicated that Syria's general domestic and foreign policy would not change.

Monday, Dec. 25, 1972 The Lincoln Star 43

•The New York Times

San Diego — While attention has focused on investigations into racial incidents, the Navy in recent weeks has quietly begun a crackdown on dissident black sailors.

Officials sources have denied the existence of any crackdown but evidence to the contrary has been mounting since the carrier Kitty Hawk returned here from Southeast Asia late last month.

The Navy's racial problem drew wide attention in mid-August when it was disclosed that black and white crewmen had engaged for more than five hours in a bloody riot aboard the carrier as it was headed for the Vietnam war zone.

In that brawl, 46 crewmen were injured and 21 sailors — all of them black — were arrested and are now being held in the brig in San Diego.

No Bail Allowed
The Navy has ordered that none of the accused blacks be released on bail although it has announced that 19 of the 21 will face special and not general courts-martial. Under the Uniform Code of Military Justice the most serious offenses are decided in general courts-martial.

The Navy has issued a series of administrative orders that appear to be aimed primarily at black crewmen. Those orders, among other things, make it illegal for blacks to give the clenched fist salute or to greet one another with a special handshake that is often referred to as "the dap," a more involved version of a black handshake widely used among civilians.

Strongman Atlas Dies At Age 80

Long Beach, N.Y. (AP) — Charles Atlas, the 98-pound weakling who built himself into a famous musclemans and told how to do it to millions of others, died Saturday after a long illness. He was 80.

Beginning in 1922, Atlas offered his secrets in a body-building correspondence course. Advertisements with a picture of his rippling torso became staples in comic books and popular magazines.

Born Angelo Siciliano in Acit, Italy, Atlas was the son of a farmer. The family came to New York in 1904.

In a 1970 interview, Atlas explained that his claim to be able to turn a weakling into a strongman was based on a real incident that cost him his girlfriend on a beach. He was 15 at the time.

"This girlfriend was a beauty," he recalled, "and two bullies came along, obviously wondering what a scrawny kid like me was doing with a girl like her."

One bully made fun of his slowness and kicked sand in his face, he said.

"The girl wanted to know why I didn't fight the fellow," he continued. "I told her that for one thing he was too damn big, and for another I was blinded by that sand."

The girl was unimpressed by the explanation, and the romance ended. Determined to prevent any future beach humiliations, the young Atlas went to a man who operated a community center in Brooklyn and was encouraged to start body-building exercises.

Atlas — who adopted the name after he was told he resembled a statue of the Greek world-bearer — developed his own system of "dynamic tension," which formed the basis of his correspondence course.

Selection as the "World's Most Perfectly Developed Man" in 1922 and 1923 helped Atlas come to public attention. And there were such stunts as pulling a string of six cars a mile.

Atlas said more than 7 million customers had bought his course as of 1970 — when it was still selling for the original $30. He had grossed $210 million, he said, adding, "I have made a comfortable living, but I am not a millionaire."

What a Party!

Chester, England (AP) — The cake was four feet high, six feet around, weighed 150 pounds and fed 1,000 party guests. The occasion was the 21st birthday of Earl Grosvenor, who just inherited $264 million. His family made its fortune through property holdings in central London.

The Navy has also moved to discharge a number of the blacks involved in shipboard racial disputes. In addition to the incident on the Kitty Hawk, there was also a demonstration by blacks on the carrier Constellation that ended with the ship's captain returning the vessel to port and putting the dissidents ashore.

Other evidence of the crackdown came earlier this month when it was announced that a Kitty Hawk sailor, believed to have been photographed delivering a black power salute as the ship entered port Nov. 28, was fined reduced in rank and ordered into custody.

Officially, the sailor, Willie Faison, 24, was convicted in a captain's mast proceeding for violation of a lawful order, the Navy said. It was alleged that he wore dungarees when the ship's plan of the day called for "a proper blue uniform" in areas visible to the public, and that he was in a restricted, dangerous radar area.

News pictures taken when he carrier entered port showed Capt. Marland Townsend, commander of the Kitty Hawk, and behind him in a near silhouette against a radar dish were several sailors with fists raised. The Navy said that Faison was not tried on any charge relating to a salute.

He was convicted and ordered to forfeit half a month's pay for two months, reduced from E-3 to E-2 pay grade and placed in 30 days' correctional custody.

Some sources close to the situation said that the Navy's recent actions were not aimed so much at black sailors as much as they were designed to show that the racial friction that has cropped up recently was not the result of any permissiveness.

Charges to that effect upset the Navy "terrifically," informed sources said.

Woman, 25, Breaks Back In Auto Mishap

A 25-year-old Lincoln woman remained in serious condition in St. Elizabeth's Hospital Sunday after her back was broken in a one-car mishap on Interstate-80 Friday.

Her husband, John Kohout, 2405 Scott, said his wife, Mary, was driving alone when the car crashed one mile west of the Platte River bridge at 1:20 p.m. Kohout, who waited at the hospital Sunday afternoon for further reports of his wife's condition, said she also sustained a broken ankle and was badly bruised.

Members of the Ashland Rescue Squad discovered the car upside down on a U-turn service road after it had apparently rolled and flipped down the grass median from the north-bound lane.

Winter Wheat Seeding Up 3% Over Last Year

Total seeding of winter wheat in Nebraska is up three per cent over 1971, the State Federal Division of Agricultural Statistics has announced.

The division said 2,877,000 acres of winter wheat were seeded in the fall of 1972 for harvest in 1973.

This would provide a total yield estimated as of Dec. 1

HOG PRICES SHOULD DIP NEXT YEAR

Hog prices for the coming year should average between $24 and $26, slightly below 1972 prices, according to a University of Nebraska agricultural economist.

Allen C. Wellman said prices of barrows and gilts should average $25-28 per hundred weight for the first half of 1973.

Average prices for the second half may be in the $23-26 range with late year prices possibly near the $22 level, he said.

Compared to 1971 levels, hog prices in 1972 advanced sharply, the economist noted, which should result in a leveling action in 1973.

at 103,572,000 bushels of winter wheat, the division said.

Nationally, winter wheat seedings are reported up one per cent, to a total of 42,793,000 acres estimated as of Dec. 1 at providing a yield of 1,278 million bushels.

The division also reported the state's hog inventory up 4% from a year earlier, to 3,455,000, with breeding stock up 15% and market hogs up 2%.

Sows farrowed on Nebraska farms during the September-November period totaled 198,000, 2% above a year ago, and farmers reported intentions to farrow 405,000 sows during the next six months, an increase of 9% over the same period a year ago.

Nationally, the division said, the hog inventory was down 2% and farrowing intentions are up only 6%.

Terminated Projects Cost $10.7 Billion

Washington — During the 1954-1970 period 68 major U.S. weapons projects were terminated. A total of $10.7 billion was invested in these before they were adjudged failures or canceled by the government.

EVERYBODY'S MONEY:

Reds' Forced Austerity
Faces Consumer Pressures

By Merryly Stanley Rukeyser
On this "peace on earth" day, the prolongation of negotiations for a cease fire pact with North Vietnam is jolting.

Communist watchers around the globe tend to assert that we individualists of the free world are far more day-to-day minded than the Marxists, who enjoy the conceit of taking a long look down the corridor of coming history and dwelling on where they will be fifty years hence.

Such a theoretical approach can bring cruel hardship to the current generation. Thus, in the Soviet Union after fifty-four years of revolutionary promising, today's workers are still asked to put up with relatively meager living standards in order to achieve doctrinaire long term benefits for the state. But to a degree such forced austerity runs contrary to human nature, and in Russia and elsewhere, including the Iron Curtain satellites, increasing pressure has been developing of late for utilizing a larger ratio of total resources for more and better consumer goods.

Satisfactions Balanced

In the life style of each individual and family, there has to be a balancing of current satisfactions against long term expected benefits. The primitive man lives only for the moment. It takes imagination to forego immediate gratification in order to build up reserves for the future. But a sense of proportion is desirable. John Maynard Keynes, the innovative British economist, used to say that in the long run we'll all be dead.

Just as it's shortsighted to exhaust all resources for immediate desires, it's fanatical to forego good living standards now in order to satisfy some theorist's dream of Utopia half a century ahead.

Certainly in our type of technological civilization, in which the sweat and groan of human labor is relieved by substituting for man's muscle power-driven automatic labor-aiding machinery (capital goods), capital accumulation which is so essential to progress depends on self discipline in which producers consume somewhat less than they earn.

In physical terms, such savings, achieved by what economists describe as the pains of abstinence, represent the deliberate use of part of a nation's productivity to make goods (tools) which are used not for consumption but to accelerate future production.

Methods Changed

With the prolonged secret negotiations with Vietnam, we have gone a long way from Woodrow Wilson's yardstick of "open diplomacy openly arrived at." In a sense, co-existence with Communism has changed the methods of the free world. The analogy of Gresham's economic law to the effect that bad money drives out good seemingly has been at work.

Certainly the totalitarian setup is more conducive to secret proceedings than the regimen in an open society with an inquisitive free press.

Merryly
Rukeyser
Balancing Required

and a loyal opposition in Congress.

It is dangerous, however, to assume that even a dictatorship can safely ignore changes in public opinion, but certainly the police state is less immediately sensitive to shifts in the popular mood than democratic systems. Where the right to dissent is abrogated, a Communist group can be cruel in ignoring the human pain caused by arbitrary and intransigent positions.

Certainly the Stock Exchange has challenged the Marxian myth that the cause of war is the capitalist's greed for profit. The behavior of the stock market, on the contrary, has demonstrated that peace is bullish.

While war might enrich a few, it creates maladjustments and disparities which unbalance national economies and make for inflation and ultimately unemployment and depression. On the other hand, peace and prospects of tranquility over a long period create the basis for venturesome planning and investment.

Timely To Recall Marx

On Christmas, it is timely to recall that Karl Marx tried to discredit the whole Christian-Judaic tradition by castigating religion as an opiate for the masses. Experience in Communist countries has demonstrated that Marxist fanaticism in making the distant future all-important is indeed an opiate.

Earlier in the century the radical domestic group known as the I.W.O. decried the tendency to blind the public to current needs in the lyric to the effect: "You'll get pie in the sky when you die."

The merit of a free system is that it creates individual responsibility in making family budgets to balance immediate expenditures against savings for the proverbial rainy day. The benefits of individual free choice are not to be measured solely in material terms but also in the scale of spiritual values reflecting personal responsibility for a life style now and in the longer future.

(Mr. Rukeyser will be pleased to receive inquiries from readers concerning financial problems. Letters with stamped, self-addressed envelopes should be sent in care of The Lincoln Star. Questions of general interest will be answered in the column. Others, to the extent time permits, will be handled by mail.)

Psychologist Says Cocktail
For Kids May Be Harmful

(c) Chicago Daily News
Chicago —The "Kiddie Cocktail," a sweet drink topped with a maraschino cherry and commonly served in a cocktail glass to make youngsters a part of the holiday party, may not be as innocuous as it appears.

A consulting psychologist here says it can be a "conditioning experience" that introduces the youngster into the ritual of drinking as a socially acceptable activity.

While the ingredients of a cocktail concoction—a mixture of ginger ale, nonalcoholic grenadine and maraschino cherry juice—are harmless in themselves, the setting, trappings and implied parental approval can be harmful, said Philip Reidda.

Like a cigarette, the "cocktail" in hand becomes a grown-up symbol and fulfills the needs of the child to be accepted as an adult, he added.

Given the introduction by a palate-pleasing drink, the transition to liquor is not difficult, he said.

Reidda, who has worked with skid row alcoholics for the last eight years, said a common theme running through their life histories is an early start in drinking.

In a report on alcoholism prepared for the Illinois Mental Health Planning Board, Reidda said the introduction of drinking into the home by well-meaning but misdirected parents as a way of having a good time can set a harmful pattern.

Reidda offered these suggestions to parents:

—Don't make alcohol a symbol of having fun. If it is to be used it should be confined to wine and milder drinks as table beverage, as is done in Europe.

—Advise children that alcohol is not a harmless social beverage but a potentially dangerous drug.

13 Aid Jobless After Defense Slashes

By The New York Times

Washington — In a tiny suite on the third floor of the Pentagon, 13 persons are trying to find help for the thousands of Americans who have lost their jobs because of defense cutbacks.

The 13 — 10 staff experts and 3 secretaries — who make up the Office of Economic Adjustment in the Pentagon are responsible for aiding communities hit by the closing of bases and cutbacks in defense contracts.

"We've knocked ourselves out with a small group of people," said Barry J. Shillito, assistant secretary of defense who is also the co-chairman of the President's Inter-Agency Economic Adjustment Committee. The President's committee, made up of cabinet members, serves as an overlord to the staff in the Pentagon.

The Pentagon crew, made up of civilian experts in such fields as public administration, rural economics, law and transportation, is proud of its successes.

Most Jobs Replaced

Their statistics show that in 70 communities that received "major economic adjustment assistance," 79,000 defense jobs were replaced with 80,000 nondefense jobs between 1969 and June of this year.

While the Pentagon has worked with some large cities, most of its success has been with small communities lacking the resources to solve their own problems.

Since 1968, 1.3 million civilians working for the military and for defense industries have lost their jobs, according to the Labor Department; 1,500 military installations in 48 states have been closed, reduced or restructured since 1969.

"The communities must ask us for help," said William Sheehan, director of the Office of Economic Adjustment, as he explained its limited clientele.

1,700 Aided
"We have worked with about 1,700 communities," said Sheehan. Seventy of the communities have been given major economic assistance. Those included Seattle and Wichita, Kan., which were dependent on the aerospace industry and suffered depressions during the last few years. Charleston, S.C., and Key West, Fla., both victims of naval reductions, are also receiving major assistance.

The Office of Economic Adjustment follows a pattern in seeking solutions for major problems.

First, a team of experts borrowed from many government agencies, flies to the city to meet local leaders and citizens. A plan of action is drawn up.

While the city begins to act on some of the proposals, the Pentagon staff returns to Washington to work as advisers to the city and lobbyist with government agencies and industries that might locate in the city.

Without funds of its own, the Office of Economic Adjustment seeks grants for the new projects from various government agencies.

"In many communities a few phone calls or letters are all that is required," said Sheehan.

"Some communities," he added, "just want to know how to get a new power generator. Fire trucks are another favorite."

Wichita is an example of how the Pentagon operates when a city has a major problem.

Unemployment hit 11.8% in April, 1971, in Wichita after Boeing, Cessna Aircraft and Beech Aircraft suffered defense contract cutbacks.

The government experts and local leaders drafted a list of 41 proposals. The city started to work on some of the suggestions, including an industrial park, for new industries.

The Office of Economic Adjustment staff sought grants for projects such as a new sewage system from the Environmental Protection Agency and a new airport from the Federal Aviation Agency.

Per-Ton Cost Of Tankers Varies

New York — The U.S. Maritime Administration estimates that the cost of building an oil tanker of 50,000 deadweight tons in the United States in 1971 was $20,450,000, or $409 per ton.

For a 100,000-ton tanker the total cost was $31 million, or $310 per ton. The per-ton cost dropped to $178 in the case of a 400,000 ton tanker.

Man Dies In Explosion At Refinery

Doraville, Ga. (UPI) — At least one man was killed Sunday night when an explosion in an oil pipeline touched off a fire at Triangle Refinery, the site of a massive gasoline storage tank fire last spring that claimed two lives.

Dekalb County authorities said they believed the victim, an employee of the refinery, was killed as he attempted to cut off a valve feeding fuel into a main pipeline where the roaring fire erupted.

Identification of the victim was being withheld pending notification of next of kin.

Police reported the fire had been extinguished about two hours after it broke out.

A police spokesman said residents of this Atlanta suburb living near the refinery had to be evacuated, but he did not know how many.

Firemen from several communities around Doraville continued to pour fire-retardant foam on the pipes to keep the fuel from re-igniting.

The Triangle Refinery fire in April injured about 150 persons, leveled three houses and destroyed three storage tanks holding two and a half million gallons of gasoline in addition to taking two lives.

Christmas Surprise Readied For Retirees

Washington (AP) —If you ever worked for the federal government, you may qualify for a surprise Christmas gift.

The General Accounting Office says the Civil Service Commission is holding about $26 million in pension rights belonging to former federal employees, many of whom could be found without much trouble or expense.

The funds, GAO said in a report to Congress, are owed to about 338,000 persons who apparently did not apply for refunds or annuities to which they were entitled.

Most Are Small

In most cases, the sums are small, but GAO, Congress' fiscal investigative agency, estimated 33,000 persons are due $100 or more and some may have thousands coming.

GAO said it ran a test on a sample of about 100 cases and found about half of the persons involved.

Among the cases it turned up, it said, were these:

—A 64-year-old New Orleans man had worked for the government 24 years but said he did not claim a pension because he was told he had to wait until he was 70. He got a back payment of $3,509 and a monthly pension of $124.

—A blind resident of Wichita, Kan., 73, formerly employed at Wright-Patterson Air Base, had been owed an annuity since 1961. He got $2,300 in back payments and a monthly pension of $27.

—An 81-year-old resident of Globe, Ariz., said he did not know that retirement contributions had been deducted from his pay during 15 years of government service. He collected $6,468 in payments dating back to 1953.

A government employee must work at least five years to qualify for a pension, but if he leaves earlier he is entitled to have his contributions returned.

Under the rules which the Civil Service Commission is now following, the report said, "most of the benefits probably never will be paid and (2) the commission will be required to keep records on the unpaid benefits forever."

Search Cost $7

GAO said its experience indicated that a search for a missing beneficiary, using retirement, census, tax and Social Security records, could be made for about $7. It suggested the commission seek authorization to finance a search in about 51,000 cases involving significant amounts, with a maximum cost of about $389,000.

The retirement fund itself, since it earned $1.3 million last year in interest on the unpaid amounts, could cover the cost, the report continues.

It said the Civil Service Commission agrees with this program.

Needham For Course In Financial Planning

New York (AP) — The chairman of the New York Stock Exchange says the Big Board should fund the development of a six-month course for seniors in high school to teach them something about managing their money.

James J. Needham said the course he had in mind would cover "total financial planning," helping the student learn to allocate his future resources among such things as insurance, bank accounts, and stocks and bonds.

He said high school seniors "would be at the right age to absorb this material," and described such a course as "a real need in most of our school systems." Besides, he added, "The senior year in high school for most students in a busy year." The idea for the course first occurred to him while he was a commissioner of the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC). Needham said. He recalled cases he had seen of "doctors, lawyers and accountants" losing large sums of money in ill-advised financial ventures.

Desire To Gamble
"There's an inherent desire on the part of everyone to gamble," the NYSE chairman said. "But if people are going to gamble, let them at least be informed first."

Needham said he had not yet decided who might be commissioned to develop the curriculum. It was his feeling, he said, that the NYSE might pay for the initial stages of the project, then turn it over to a broader range of funding sources.

In an interview with The Associated Press, Needham also touched on a variety of other subjects, including the regulatory posture of the government toward the securities industry.

"I don't mean to condemn the Antitrust Division of the Justice Department," he said. "What they are doing is what they think is right. But the regulatory situation that exists right now is completely unsatisfactory."

Arrangements that have been approved by the SEC. Needham said, should not subsequently be attacked as antitrust violations by the Justice Department. This has occurred, for example, with the issue of the fixed brokerage fee schedule which now governs most stock trades.

The Big Board chairman said he thought the solution was to make the Justice Department a part of the initial decision-making process of SEC rulings, thus heading off problems later.

On other topics, the exchange chairman:

—Said the NYSE board of directors wants to do something "concrete" to aid the small investor, but that no definite action was likely before February at the earliest. He said the board would look particularly at the fees the small investor pays and the research services he receives.

—Proposed the federal government encourage investment by making brokerage commission fees tax deductible in the year a stock purchase is made.

—Said that in his opinion single ticker tape reporting simultaneously the trading activity on all the nation's stock exchanges will be a positive development but "not the great boon to mankind" which some people have made it out to be. He suggested tape watchers will still concentrate on "the New York price."

—Argued that "states and state agencies 'don't really want to be members of stock exchanges,' even though a Connecticut state agency recently bought a state on the ton Exchange. The states, he said, would really prefer a climate in which they could negotiate their brokerage fees, and pay separately for executions of trades and for research.

—Described interest from listed companies as "tremendous" in the NYSE's acting as an information hub to facilitate business contact between American firms and the Soviet Union.

Security Guard Spreads Christmas Cheer To 10,000 Persons With A Penny Gift

Baltimore (AP) — While others are saying it with cards or larger gifts, a 76-year-old security guard has wished 10,000 persons Merry Christmas this week by handing them a shiny new penny.

"When I can make someone laugh or smile, I feel good," said Austin G. White, who five years ago began passing out pennies at Christmas "as a gag."

Each year the penny tradition grew until White said he decided to hand out $100 worth of shiny goodwill to passersby this season.

He visited 35 different banks to get the sackful of 1972 Lincoln pennies and last week ended his weeklong greeting tradition by giving away the last 2,000 pennies outside the

One S. Calvert Building, where he is a private guard. While, who earns $1.80 an hour, apparently is pleased that his "gag" has grown into a $100 giveaway. "Helping people keeps me young and eating, sleeping or working never worried me," he said.

Music news is covered thoroughly in the "Sunday Journal and Star."

Divine, Karthaus Earn Honors

Valparaiso's John Divine and Lincoln's Gary Karthaus have won national honors.

Divine, a middle guard on South Dakota's football team, received honorable mention for the Little All-American team. Karthaus' time in a track meet last summer was verified as a national best.

The 5-11, 217-pound Divine averaged 10.2 tackles a game and was a co-captain for the Coyotes.

He was an all-North Central Conference selection last year as a junior. South Dakota posted a 9-1 record this season and won the NCC title for the first time since 1951.

The 13-year-old Karthaus was timed in the 800 with a 2:15.0 clocking at the Midwest AAU Junior Olympics in Omaha.

His time was a Midwest record, the second straight year he broke a Midwest mark. Karthaus' time in the 660 during the 1971 meet was second nationally on a time comparison basis with other regional meet winners.

This year, however, his 880 time topped all other regional winners' times.

Since the Dawes Junior High student just turned 13, he'll be eligible in the same age group this summer and could break the national record. Three other Lincoln athletes also placed nationally by performance comparisons in the same meet.

Toni Churchill's 5-3 1/4 leap in the high jump is third nationally. Mark Sales' 11.8 in the 100 is second and Perry Krogmeyer's 10.9 in the 100 is fifth. Several other Nebraska athletes also placed.

Indoor Track Season Around Corner

If basketball season is well underway, the indoor track season is just around the corner.

The Doane Invitational will kickoff the state college indoor season Jan. 13. Woody Greeno's Nebraska Wesleyan team will have two home meets on the Nebraska indoor oval.

The Nebraska Intercollegiate Athletic Conference has moved its wrestling tournament.

The meet was originally set for Doane, but the Tigers didn't field a full team this year. So, the NIAC wrestling coaches voted to hold the meet in Fremont at Midland.

The tourney will be conducted Feb. 14, so the conference coaches can take in the Nebraska State Wrestling Tournament in Lincoln Feb. 16-17 to see who to try and recruit for college competition next season.

Laurel's Brent Fahnestock is the second-leading scorer and rebounder for the Coyote varsity.

The 6-4 senior is averaging 20.5 points and 11.2 rebounds a game. South Dakota is 4-2 going into the NCC Holiday Tournament.

WASHINGTON TIPS PACKERS

... Kilmer, Knight Spark 16-3 Triumph

Washington (AP) — Washington's defensive oldtimers squeezed the life out of the "New Era" Green Bay Packers 16-3 Sunday and moved toward a showdown with world champion Dallas in the National Football League playoffs.

Bill Kilmer, the Redskins' quarterback, hit Roy Jefferson with a 32-yard touchdown bullet and much-maligned specialist Curt Knight kicked three field-goals.

Washington, 12-3, advanced to the New Year's Eve National Conference title game here against the Cowboys, a team the Skins outgunned in the NFC Eastern Division race.

"We're ready for Dallas," said Kilmer. "We know the Cowboys, and they know us. I don't look for a lot of shocks, we've just got to out-hit them."

Next Sunday's kickoff is scheduled here for 2 p.m. CST, three hours after the American Conference championship game begins at Pittsburgh. To the victors go Super Bowl berths on Jan. 14 and a shot at a $25,000-a-man bonanza.

Green Bay, 10-5, saw its comeback season blunted and Coach Dan Devine said:

"That's about as hard as we can play. I couldn't ask for more, but it was still a bitter pill. We fully expected to win."

Dallas, 11-4, won the other NFC spot by edging San Francisco in a 30-28 thriller Saturday.

The Packer offense ran into stone walls in the clutch before a record 53,140 celebrants at Robert F. Kennedy Stadium and John Brockington, a 1,000-yard gainer during the season, was held to nine yards in 13 attempts.

The frustrated Brockington never made more than three on a single carry.

"We tried our five-man line against Green Bay the last time we played," said Redskins Coach George Allen. "It didn't work too well then but we won anyway. This time it was beautiful."

Green Bay had one burst of glory in the second quarter, taking a 3-0 lead on Chester Marcol's 17-yard field goal. Scott Hunter hit four of five passes for 52 yards to get the Packers within range.

Herb Mul-Key returned the next kickoff 42 yards to ignite the Redskins, and Kilmer went to work by hitting Jefferson for nine to the Packer 49.

Five plays later, the veteran quarterback from UCLA hit the fleet Jefferson on a perfectly-thrown post pattern for a 32-yard score.

The touchdown came with only 2:06 left in the first half, but Washington wasn't finished.

A poor 24-yard punt by Green Bay's Ron Widby gave the Skins another shot at the Washington 41 with 55 seconds remaining.

Kilmer fired to Jefferson for six and that was all Knight needed to toe a 42-yard field goal at 0:33 for a 10-3 edge.

Knight, who made only 14 of 30 field goal attempts during the regular season, connected on boots of 35 and 46 yards in a defensively furious second half. Green Bay was so completely stymied in the last two periods that it couldn't even give Marcol a long shot at a field goal.

The three Knight field goals tied an NFC playoff mark set 24 hours earlier by Tony Fritsch of the Cowboys.

Larry Brown, the NFL's leading rusher until he sat out the final two games with an injury, ran for 101 yards in 25 carries although he was not a major factor in the scoring until he helped set up Knight's final three-pointer with 2:11 left in the game.

It was the first playoff game in 30 years in the nation's capital and marked the first time George Allen, the Redskins' highly successful coach, ever has been able to win a post-season battle. He was 0-4 before Sunday.

Kilmer connected on seven of 14 passes against the stinky young Green Bay defense for 100 yards. He was felled by an Alven Roche rush in the first half, but returned without missing a series and put 10 points on the scoreboard within 93 seconds before halftime.

Washington had a total of 232 yards. Jefferson caught five passes for 84.

The Pack was back defensively, but — other than the handsome march toward Marcol's field goal — Coach Dan Devine's boys still have some climbing to do on offense.

Dolphins Survive Scare, 20-14

... UNBEATEN MIAMI EDGES CLEVELAND WITH LATE SCORE

Miami (AP) — "The best thing for us," said Miami's Larry Csonka, "was to get behind. It got very quiet and somebody said, 'If we're gonna get anything done, now's the time to do it. It got done.'"

The Dolphins, heavy favorites to beat Cleveland, had to come from one point back in the fourth quarter to down the Browns 20-14 Sunday in their National Football League playoff game.

The victory carried Miami into the American Football Conference championship game next Sunday against the Steelers in Pittsburgh and kept their record perfect at 15-0.

The Browns were brutal in shutting down the Dolphins' high-powered offense — until about eight minutes remained in the game.

Then Earl Morrall's passing and Mercury Morris' running started things for Miami and Jim Kiick finished matters, plowing over from eight yards out behind the blocking of tackle Norm Evans and guard Bob Kuechenberg for the winning score with 4 minutes and 54 seconds to go.

"I'm glad I had the opportunity to redeem myself," said Kiick, who had spent the season in Morris' shadow.

The Browns weren't really finished, though, until linebacker Doug Swift made Miami's fifth interception off

drive-killing pickoff in the closing seconds deep in Miami territory.

"It was a big thrill, a big financial thrill," said Swift. "They were rushing, and Phipps just threw it at my head."

Miami got on the scoreboard quickly in the first period when reserve safety Charles Babb blocked a Don Cockroft punt on the Cleveland 17, picked it up at the seven and scampered untouched into the end zone.

The Miami lead widened to 10-0 on Garo Yepremian's 40-yard field goal.

After a scoreless second period, the Browns, the AFC's "wild card" playoff team, got their offense under way, with Phipps bringing Cleveland back to within three points on a five-yard scoring run.

Miami widened its lead to 13-7 on Yepremian's second field goal, this one from 46 yards out, less than two minutes into the fourth period.

But the Browns, two-touchdown underdogs to the American Conference East champions, started a march from their own 10-yard line.

Phipps ran for 14 yards and Bo Scott did the same before Phipps hit Hooker for 18 yards to the Miami 44.

Several plays later, Phipps was victimized by Miami's fourth interception but Dick Anderson, returning the ball, fumbled it right back to the Browns with Hooker recovering on the Miami 30.

After Ken Brown's three-yard run, Phipps found Hooker wide open on the two-yard line and the Cleveland receiver easily stepped into the left corner of the end zone, putting Cleveland ahead by a point with 8:11 to go.

A Morrall-to-Paul Warfield pass gained 15 yards to the Miami 35, and Mercury Morris ran twice for 10 more. Then Warfield snared Morrall's 35-yard toss behind Cleveland cornerback Ben Davis at the Browns 20.

One play later, Warfield was decked by linebacker Bill Andrews on the eight, resulting in an interference penalty against Cleveland. On the next play Kiick skammed over for the TD.

Morrall, passing conservatively, completed six of 13 passes for 88 yards, without an interception, while Phipps completed just nine of 23 for 131.

Scott ripped through the Miami defense for 94 yards while Leroy Kelly was held to just 11 yards on four rushes.

'Football Widow' Becomes Rooter

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Like many other long-suffering women throughout the country, Mrs. John Koban of suburban Plum Borough becomes a football widow every Sunday afternoon and Monday night when professional football monopolizes the television screen.

But now Mrs. Koban has joined the rooters.

When the Pittsburgh Steelers pulled off a "miracle play" Saturday on Franco Harris' incredible touchdown in the last five seconds for a 13-7 victory over the Oakland Raiders and a berth in the AFC title game, Mrs. Koban wept.

Then she jumped from her seat at Three Rivers Stadium and danced.

"I'm a football widow all the time," she said, "but just say I'm so happy now. I'll never complain again. That team is dynamite."

Mario Camaioni was in despair when the Raiders took a 7-6 lead with 1:13 left in the game.

"I'll admit I was in tears," he said. "I just decided all I could do was pray—and I did."

When the "miracle" occurred, Camaioni wound an earsplitting hand siren. "It's just a miracle," he said. "A beautiful miracle."

John Scherbiak, grinning, displayed a sign proclaiming, "Was There Ever A Doubt?"

"For just a second," he said, "I was worried, but we pulled it off."

Steelers wives, led by Melissa Bradshaw, wife of Terry the quarterback, sang "We Wish You A Merry, Merry Christmas—We Wish You All a Bowl Win" when the team emerged jubilant after the game.

Scarlett Walden, whose husband Bobby is the punting specialist, and Janet Mansfield, wife of veteran center Ray Mansfield, and other spouses joined in the merriment.

And delighted fans jaywalked in snarled downtown traffic amid scurrying last-minute Christmas shoppers in America's "Steeler" City.

Christ Has Spot In Staubach Family's Christmas

EDITOR'S NOTE: Some men from the bruising world of pro football manage to stand as strong spiritually as they do physically. Roger Staubach is a stirring example. The Dallas Cowboys' quarterback, a former Heisman Trophy winner at Navy, gives his thoughts on this Christmas with the help of Associated Press Staff Writer Hubert Mizell.

By ROGER STAUBACH

My business is violent, often bone-busting and bloody. It's tough to "turn the other cheek." Still, it's possible to scramble past life's temptations and play first string on God's squad.

Christmas . . . It's special to me. Marianne and I have three wonderful little girls. Faces ignite on this morning as they rip into brightly-decked gifts. Soon the Staubach living room is buried in an ocean of crumpled wrapping paper.

Then, we talk of the real meaning.

We explain to Jennifer, who's 6, along with Michelle, 4, and little Stephanie, 3, that what we're really celebrating is Jesus Christ's birthday. They nod, seeming to understand, but it becomes more difficult in an age when Christmas is more typified by department stores than churches.

With fatherly pride upon my children and recall how fortunate I was at that stage to have lived in a Christian home. I think of my adult crossroads — high school, the Naval Academy, active military duty, the Cowboys — and how my need for faith grew stronger.

Faith . . . I couldn't live without it.

When I walk through the Dallas locker room, I sense that my Cowboy teammates respect me for my beliefs. I don't go from locker to locker, trying to be some sort of sweatshirt evangelist, but I hope to set a daily example that might make others want to pursue a firmer association with God.

My off-the-field life is relatively uncomplicated. It isn't spent bouncing around Dallas night spots, even though I enjoy downing a beer with the boys. I have my fun, but try to center activities mostly around my family.

I try not to get locked into any sort of social or professional clique. I don't believe you should select your friends by religion or profession. There are fantastic people from every social avenue, every race, every denomination and every corner of the earth.

We should love them all, even if it's a 280-pound tackle trying to rub your nose in the turf.

Many people call me a square. My reaction is simply this — if loving my family and being a Christian are the traits, then I'm proud to be a square.

Sure, I hear explosive language on the field, some powerful cursing. I don't approve of it. I don't do it myself, but neither do I go around slapping wrists of grown men for their vile words. If enough men set good examples, such habits will begin to fade from the scene.

As for the nasty words, don't forget I served four years in the U.S. Navy. I've known some men who could teach these pros a new word or two. But, no matter how rugged your surroundings, you've got to keep the faith.

I've been fortunate after a late start in pro football due to military duty. We won the Super Bowl last January. I'm lucky named most valuable player in our Super Bowl victory over the Miami Dolphins, more honors and money rolled in.

But, at times, I worry about having too much . . . about relishing an expensive automobile, a nice wardrobe or a big house more than my spiritual life. I worry about shortchanging Christ for the exciting world that spins around me.

Religious faith should not vary from the sweet times to the sour. I'd like to think I could be as spiritually strong playing for an 0-and-14 team as when enjoying a Super Bowl triumph. Whether I'm MVP or a guy getting splinters on the bench, I'd like to think things are the same between me and God.

This season has been a personal test.

I was injured and lost my No. 1 job as quarterback. Sad times came in my athletic life. I hated being on the sidelines, but tried never to ask God for a reason. It's his business and there was no justification to ask, "Why are you doing this to me?"

But I got to keep the faith

Hunter clicked on 12 of 24 passes for 150 yards. Green Bay made 211 yards in total offense, but the Redskins never broke.

NFL officials announced that the American Conference championship game would be played at 11 a.m. CST next Sunday, while the game here will be at 2 p.m. CST, allowing television fans to watch both in six straight hours of football.

Sinatra, Mancini Applaud Harris

Pittsburgh (AP) — Franco Harris made sweet music for the Pittsburgh Steelers, and he got rave reviews from Frank Sinatra and Henry Mancini.

Both of the musically renowned Steeler fans telegraphed congratulations Saturday after Pittsburgh nipped Oakland 13-7 in the American Football Conference playoff on a miraculous touchdown by Harris in the final seconds.

Sinatra, officially inducted into the "Franco's Italian Army" fan club earlier this season, said: "The following is an order. Attack. Attack. Attack. Attack."

Mancini, the composer from nearby Aliquippa, Pa., wired: "Congratulations on the Steelers' win. Where do I go to enlist in Franco's Army?"

Chicago Topples Maple Leafs, 5-1

CHICAGO (AP) — Dennis Hull scored his 18 and 19th goals of the season to pace the Chicago Black Hawks to a 5-1 victory over the Toronto Maple Leafs in a National Hockey League game Sunday.

The victory moved Chicago five points ahead of the Minnesota North Stars in the race for first place in the NHL West Division. The loss was the 19th of the season for Toronto against 10 victories.

Skorich: Blocked Punt Hurt Browns' Chances

...PLAY 'SHOULDN'T HAVE HAPPENED'

Miami (AP) — A blocked punt, a play which Cleveland Browns Coach Nick Skorich said shouldn't have happened, helped give the Miami Dolphins their 20-14 victory Sunday in an American Football Conference playoff game.

"I think our blockers got confused," said Skorich. "They missed their blocking assignments and that was disastrous. It was an easy seven points."

Charles Babb blocked the Don Cockcroft punt on the Cleveland's 17 yard line in the first quarter, picked it up at the seven and ran the ball in.

"It was like running a 100-yard dash," said Babb, a reserve safety who lined up on the line of scrimmage with nine other Dolphins. "The ball hit my elbow then I fell on it. I was in a daze and didn't know what to do."

"Curtis Johnson picked me up and threw me into the end zone," said Babb, a rookie from Memphis State. "It's the first time I've scored since my junior year in college."

"You should not make that mistake in a playoff game," said Skorich. "We always insist when we line up for a punt that we count off—know who is blocking who. The caller (Jim Houston) hollered out 10 men."

"Lloyd Mumphord, Curtis Johnson and I were going in to pressure the kicker," said Babb. "I went in first. Lloyd said he was right behind me and could have got it, too. I didn't hit anybody going in."

The Browns rallied from their 10-0 halftime deficit to take a 14-13 lead in fourth quarter, but the Dolphins sewed it up in the closing minutes with an 80-yard touchdown drive climaxed by an eight-yard burst up the middle by Jim Kiick.

"That was the one they had to have," said Browns' linebacker Dale Lindsey, calling it the mark of a great team. "When the chips were down, we just couldn't stop them."

Miami Coach Don Shula said. "Everything was laid out in front of us with eight minutes to go. We had to score a touchdown and we did what we had to do. This exemplifies the year."

The Browns were considered as much as a two-touchdown underdog against the unbeaten Dolphins. Five interceptions of passes thrown by quarterback Mike Phipps kept the Browns from pulling one of the great upsets of all time.

"I think it was a matter of a young quarterback throwing a little erratic at times," said Skorich of Phipps. "We knew he was making mistakes—big pressure game problems—but we knew he was capable of making the big play for us."

Bernier Leads Los Angeles Win

Bernier scored the Kings' first three goals in the first two periods and picked up his fourth midway into the third period.

NFL Players: End Blackouts

Washington (AP) — The National Football League called Friday for lifting the NFL's home-area television blackout for the divisional playoffs on an experimental basis.

In a statement issued by NFLPA Executive Director Edward R. Garvey, the association said: "The Washington, San Francisco, Miami and Pittsburgh fans deserve the opportunity to see their teams perform in these championship games."

Rogers Plans 'Somersault'

MIAMI (AP) — South co-coach Pepper Rogers of UCLA says he's going to lead his team into the Orange Bowl with a somersault in Monday night's 27th annual Shrine North-South College All-Star game.

Rogers says he pulled the stunt twice as a head coach and both times his teams won. Rogers and Frank Broyles of Arkansas, the other South coach, are taking a carefree attitude about the Christmas night game, which will be telecast nationally by ABC.

For the first time in recent years, the South will enter the game, which is scheduled for 9 p.m. EST, without one practice session in pads.

"It would be so great if all football coaching were like this game," Pepper said. "The players have a good time at practice. The coaches have a good time. There's no bitterness. No recruiting pressure. What a ball coaching would be if it were patterned after this."

North coaches Bob DeMoss of Purdue and Duffy Daugherty of Michigan State sent their squad through drills with pads, but say they, too, plan a simple, basic game.

"In a game like this you don't have time to do any fancy stuff," DeMoss said. "You just have to work on the simple passing and running games."

Both squads completed their final pregame practice session Sunday and elected co-captains.

The South selected Burgess Owens, a senior defensive back for the University of Miami, and Joe Ferguson, Arkansas quarterback, as co-captains.

Two Purdue players, quarterback Gary Danielson and linebacker Grier Bingham, were named to head up the North team.

Loop Clubs Enjoy Attractive Marks

...BIG 8 TOURNEY SET

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Big Eight Conference basketball teams take a classy 39-19 record into their annual preseason tournament which opens Wednesday night in Kansas City's Municipal Auditorium.

The Kansas State Wildcats, 7-1 and 17th ranked, tuned up for the tournament by thrashing Arizona 85-69 Saturday night.

Two other league clubs, Kansas and Colorado, weren't so fortunate in their final games before the four-day showdown. Kansas lost to Kentucky 77-71 and Colorado was routed by New Mexico 92-71.

Undefeated Oklahoma breezed to a 106-94 exhibition decision over Athletes in Action.

Kansas State had little trouble with Arizona, moving ahead by as many as 12 points in the first half. Steve Mitchell led the Wildcats assault with 26 points, followed by Bob Chipman with 18 and Danny Beard with 12.

Kansas, 4-4, stayed even with Kentucky during the first half, which ended 33-33. During that time, the Jayhawks fell behind by 10 points before they caught up but couldn't keep up the pace.

Danny Knight, Kansas' 6-foot-10 freshman, made his college debut and contributed 15 points and seven rebounds. The Jayhawks' top scorers were Dale Greenlee with 18 points and Rick Suttle with 16. Colorado, 3-3, was no match for the Lobos, who had five players in double figures. Freshman Dave Logan was Colorado's top scorer with 18 points and teammate Scott Wedman added 17.

Freshman Alvan Adams, collecting 27 points and 13 rebounds, paced Oklahoma in a game that doesn't count officially. For the record, the Sooners, 19th ranked, are 6-4.

Kansas State and Oklahoma, despite their impressive records, will have to contend with the likes of 10th-ranked Missouri and Iowa State, either expects to win the preseason fireworks. Missouri is 8-0 and Iowa State 6-1.

Iowa State and Nebraska, 3-4, collide in Wednesday night's opener. Missouri battles Colorado in the second game.

The other clubs play their first games Thursday night. Oklahoma State, 2-5, facing Oklahoma and Kansas clashing with Kansas State. The finals are Saturday night.

Basketball Classics Scheduled

•The New York Times

By Sam Goldaper

New York — It's tournament time and college basketball teams are on the move.

This is the season recruiters make good on their promises with the trips around the nation they dangled as recruiting bait.

In New York it's the Holiday Festival at Madison Square Garden, in Philadelphia it's called the Quaker City in New Orleans, the Sugar Bowl Classic, in Oklahoma City, the All-College Tournament and in Hawaii, the Rainbow Classic.

In the five-day span from Tuesday to Saturday, there will be some 34 tournaments involving major college teams throughout the nation.

The University of California, Los Angeles will bring a 51-game winning streak to the Sugar Bowl Classic Friday night against Drake, Illinois and Temple. The Bruins' opening game is against Drake, which boosted its won-lost record to 5-1 Saturday night by overwhelming North Dakota State, 106-70.

One of the surprises of the season has been Alabama, which may be ready for a spot in the nation's top 20 after its 77-76 victory over Dayton in the final of the Dayton Classic. The Crimson Tide, led by Wendell Hudson, a 24.3 scorer, has a 5-1 record and one of those victories was over Florida State, the seventh-ranked team.

Fordham salvaged one victory in three tries on the West Coast — an 83-70 triumph over California, and the Rams now take their 6-2 record into the Rainbow Classic against Louisville. Kevin Moriarty, the Rams' sophomore, came off the bench and scored 20 second-half points to pace the victory.

Niagara and Boston College, both in the Holiday Festival, which opens Tuesday afternoon, split. Niagara won its fourth game in five by trouncing St. Peter's of Jersey City, 115-90, and Vanderbilt beat Boston College, 78-62, for its eighth straight.

Missouri and Oklahoma are unbeaten, but Kansas State (7-1) looms as the favorite in the Big Eight Conference tournament that begins Wednesday night.

Kansas State (7-1) returns much of the same team that posted a 19-9 record last season en route to the National Collegiate Athletic Association Midwest Regional final. Steve Mitchell, who has a perfect score in eight shots from the floor, scored 25 points against Arizona.

Buckeyes Drill While USC Rests

PASADENA, CALIF. (UPI) — Woody Hayes sent his Ohio State football team through a Christmas Eve practice Sunday while University of Southern California, the Buckeyes' Rose Bowl opponent, had its second straight day off.

Ohio State had a Christmas party at the Huntington Hotel here Sunday night with starting offensive guard Chuck Bonica, a 256-pound senior playing Santa Claus.

The Buckeyes will have Christmas Day off as will the Trojans. Both teams return to the practice field Tuesday.

"We consider this a game for the national championship," Hayes said, "but I'm not making it a big issue for our players."

Supreme Court Deals Nixon 'Major Defeat'

...TELEVISION BLACKOUT UPHELD

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court refused Sunday to hear an appeal to lift a local television blackout of the National Football League playoff game between Green Bay and Washington.

The appeal, relayed by limousine in pre-dawn darkness, and its subsequent denial issued just hours before the 11 a.m. CST kickoff, was a major defeat for the nation's most prominent sports fan — President Nixon.

Through Atty. Gen. Richard G. Kleindienst, the President last week asked that the ban be lifted for this Washington game and any other NFL playoff game sold out 48 hours in advance of the kickoff. NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle refused.

This brought a statement from Kleindienst that the Administration "would strongly urge the new Congress to examine the entire antitrust exemption statute and seek legislation that is more in keeping with the public interest."

Immediately after this, a group headed by Robin Ficker, an attorney living in suburban Silver Spring, Md., sued to force the league and the Columbia Broadcasting System to telecast the game locally.

The District Court and then the U.S. Circuit Court rejected the argument that the blackout is unconstitutional.

About 2 a.m. CST Sunday, Ficker lodged an appeal with the Supreme Court asking that it hear the case, and, if necessary, delay the game pending its ruling.

About two hours before game time, Ficker reported he had been advised by a court employee that Chief Justice Warren E. Burger, acting for the court, had refused to hear the case. Ficker said he was told the appeal had been delivered by limousine to Burger's home and the Chief Justice had sent back his denial.

Ficker said this left him no further legal recourse. And it seemed likely to foreclose further litigation aimed at any other blackout during the current round of playoffs, although Ficker said he might confer with interested parties in other cities.

Although blacked out for the Washington CBS-TV outlet, the Green Bay-Washington game was carried by the Baltimore CBS station, allowing thousands in the Washington area to view it. But many other thousands were unable to tune in the Baltimore channel even though it is only about 40 miles from the center of the nation's capital.

In rejecting the President's request, Rozelle said that the local blackouts are necessary to protect boxoffice sales in many league cities where sellouts are not the rule, as they are in Washington. He argued further that if local telecasting were allowed regularly it ultimately would erode sales even in the best boxoffice towns.

Professional football enjoys a wide degree of antitrust immunity and this privilege frequently has been attacked in Congress without success. However, such legislation has not had, up to this time, the active support of any administration.

Honey Jay Gets Christmas Win

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Honey Jay, running third with one-eighth of a mile to go, closed with a rush and won the $15,000 Christmas Handicap at the New Orleans Fair Grounds going away as the ancient track resumed Sunday racing for the first time since 1940.

A crowd of 11,831 turned out on a brisk sunny day and wagered a total of $780,299 on the 10-race program.

Honey Jay, with Phil Rubbico aboard, covered the six furlongs in 1:10 1-5, paying $7, $3.80 and $3.40.

Great Sun was $6 and $4.40 to place and Merry Perry $5.40 to show.

Merry Perry led at the head of the stretch, but wound up 4 1/2-lengths off the pace as Honey Jay and Great Sun charged at the finish.

Honey Jay and Great Sun passed Merry Perry together and Honey Jay kept going for a 2 1/2-length victory.

Carleton Paces Ottawa Victory

OTTAWA (UPI) — Wayne Carleton scored two goals Sunday to spark the Ottawa Nationals to a 6-2 victory over the Quebec Nordiques in a World Hockey Association game.

The Nationals, bombed Quebec goaltender Serge Aubry with 50 shots during the game while Quebec managed only 20 on Gilles Gratton.

Missouri's Fink Earns Fiesta Fete

TEMPE, Ariz. (AP) — Arizona State University halfback Woody Green verified his selection as an Associated Press All-American by scoring four touchdowns in the second annual Fiesta Bowl contest.

Green piled up 202 yards rushing Saturday night as ASU stopped Missouri 49-35. The Sun Devil junior was named the game's most valuable offensive player.

Missouri defensive halfback Mike Fink took top defensive honors. Fink took a kickoff following a 17-yard touchdown run by Green and threaded his way for 100 yards to the end zone in the final period. He also intercepted a pass to set up a second score.

Brent McClanahan, a senior ASU fullback, rolled up 171 yards rushing as the Sun Devils compiled a school-record 718 yards total offense.

ASU Head Coach Frank Kush called the victory proof the Sun Devils have arrived in big-time football.

"I hope folks realize around the nation that we can play a caliber of football with the Notre Dames, the Colorados, the Oklahoma and the teams Missouri plays," he said.

"We knew Arizona State had a fine running game. But we didn't think they'd be that effective," said Missouri coach Al Onofrio in summing up the contest.

Ho Hum—Top-Ranked UCLA Downs Notre Dame

By Associated Press
Notre Dame's basketball team was praised by UCLA. It also — ho, hum — was beaten.

"Notre Dame threw up a good zone," said UCLA Coach John Wooden after his top-ranked Bruins patiently shot over it for an 82-56 victory Saturday night that extended their winning streak to 51 games.

Notre Dame, the last team to beat UCLA — Jan. 23, 1971 — never threatened this time as UCLA ran its season's record to 6-0 going into a first-round game against Drake in the Sugar Bowl Classic at New Orleans Friday night.

Drake, unranked in The Associated Press poll, trounced North Dakota State 106-70 Saturday night to boost its record to 5-1.

In other games involving members of the Top Ten, third-ranked Marquette whipped Iowa 69-61; No. 4 North Carolina State topped Georgia 97-83; sixth-ranked Long Beach State routed Los Angeles Loyola 105-77 in the final of the International City Classic and No. 7 Florida State trounced Northwestern 91-73.

Allen Savors Initial Playoff Win

... 'PLAYERS FELT SORRY' FOR 'SKINS COACH

WASHINGTON (UPI) — "I guess the players felt sorry for me. They must have said it's about time George Allen won a playoff," he said. Washington Redskins Coach George Allen Sunday, savoring his first playoff victory ever.

His Redskins has just controlled the Green Bay running and the Packers 16-3 to advance into the playoff finals against Dallas here next Sunday. It was Allen's first victory after three straight playoff losses as head coach of the Los Angeles Rams and the Redskins.

Allen said the difference in the game was his "quarter strategy," which he calls his five-man defensive line, implemented to stop Green Bay's MacArthur Lane and John Brockington.

That, and a lot of good, hard hitting spelled extinction for the Packers.

The Redskins came into the game with two straight losses after clinching the National Conference Eastern Division title. They seemed to have lost momentum which Allen sometimes says is important and other times says is not.

"We established our own momentum this week in practice," Allen said. "We concentrated and we worked hard and we have fine football players."

"I wasn't that concerned about my playoff record. I always knew that if you just kept winning and winning, you'd come out on top in the end."

"We finally played football for a change," linebacker Jack Pardee said. "We put in an extra big man in the defensive line (Manny Sistrunk) to help control the run. That and good hard hitting is the way to beat the Packers."

If Allen felt it was the "quarter defense" that made the difference, Green Bay

Coach Dan Devine felt his offensive team should have taken advantage of it.

"You leave a weakness somewhere else when you take out a linebacker," Devine said as he peeled off three layers of clothing. "We weren't quite capable of exploiting that weakness."

Green Bay linebacker Fred Carr said it was the Redskins' running game and All-Pro Larry Brown that enabled them to control the game, particularly in the second half.

Brown, who sat out the Redskins' last two regular season games to recuperate from injuries, suffered a strained knee and missed the final portion of the second quarter but still managed to rush for 101 yards on 25 carries.

"Brown did a helluva job," Carr said. "He played in pain. We gave him good licks but he just got up every time. He's a helluva football player."

Kilmer, who directed the Redskins to a 21-16 victory over Green Bay on Nov. 26, said "we didn't change the game plan much this time. We wanted to throw early to loosen up their defense for the run."

"On the touchdown pass to Roy Jefferson I threw a deep post pattern off a play fake. We had used the same pass before but I threw it behind him. This time I used it with a play fake and it froze the cornerback just enough and Jefferson ran a super pattern."

For the young Packers, the season is over. Linebacker Jim Carter summed it up saying "we did a good job. We had hard hitting, but we just came up on the other end of the stick. But if you think about how the game went, you've just got to cry."

Landry: Cowboys Beat Odds

DALLAS (UPI) — Tom Landry is often accused of having a computer tucked away in his brain, so it is easy to trust him when he gives you some odds.

But even Landry might have been quoting a short price, when, emotionally drained after the weird turn of events he had just witnessed Saturday, he said:

"You can be in that situation 100 times and probably win one of them."

But whatever the odds the chore was accomplished. Dallas defeated San Francisco by some manner which is still not clearly evident and the Cowboys are in the NFC title game for the third straight year and for the fifth time in the past seven seasons.

The mob that greeted Dallas on its arrival back home Saturday night were acting as if their favorites had just won their second straight Super Bowl.

The mechanics of the comeback, which featured two Roger Staubach touchdown passes in the last seconds to defeat San Francisco 30-28, were many.

There was Calvin Hill's 43-yard run to set up Toni Fritsch's 27-yard field goal, the roughing the passer penalty which tacked on 15 yards to a Staubach completion, the 20-yard rifle shot to Billy Parks which brought the deficit to only five points with 1:20 left.

Then that frantic scramble on the outside kick, the Staubach run of 21 yards, the 19-yard pass to Parks which got the ball down to the 10 and finally the pass to Ron Sellers (the secondary receiver on the play) which gave Dallas the win.

"I don't care who we play," said Landry, referring to the title game, which he was simply delighted to have a chance to be in.

"After something like this I think we'd play them both (Green Bay and Washington) in the same day if we had to."

"You just never know what's going to happen. Pittsburgh proved that (in the first of the days' miracle double header). It's the best comeback by a Dallas team. It's a great tribute to our players. We had to just put everything we had together in two minutes and we did it."

And in the backwash was that old question—who would be taking the field next Sunday. Craig Morton or Roger Staubach. Although Cowboy fans might have a landslide opinion of their own the decision was pending for the moment.

"Remember that turnovers hurt Morton," said Landry. "I don't know if Roger will start next week."

Staubach himself was not verbally pressing for the assignment, although obviously he wants nothing better than to start his first game since suffering a shoulder separation in the preseason.

"Craig Morton could have done the same thing," said Roger. "He got some bad breaks in there but he could have turned it around, too."

"I'm just glad I could contribute. I hadn't really contributed anything all season and I might I could."

—HARRIS' TD QUESTIONED—

Controversy Still Rages After Win

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — While Pittsburgh fans basked in the glory of the Steelers' stunning last-minute playoff victory over the Oakland Raiders Saturday, controversy still raged concerning the legality of one of the weirdest plays ever in post-season competition.

The Steelers defeated Oakland 13-7 Saturday when rookie Franco Harris, trailing on a desperation fourth-and-10 pass from Terry Bradshaw from the Pittsburgh 40, picked off a ball deflected by the Raiders' Jack Tatum and churned into the end zone with five seconds left for the deciding score.

The touchdown came little more than a minute after sub quarterback Kenny Stabler ran 30 yards for a touchdown and George Blanda added the extra point to give Oakland a 7-6 lead.

The controversy erupted because of the deflection. The pass was intended for John "Frenchy" Fuqua, Harris' running mate, and he and Tatum collided going for the ball. A pass touched consecutively by two offensive players is incomplete and the Raiders stormed onto the field to protest the play.

Fred Swearingen, the referee, delayed his call to consult with Art McNally, the National Football League supervisor of officials who was seated in the press box.

"How do you rule?" asked McNally, who had access to the video instant replay monitor located about 20 feet away. "Touchdown," replied Swearingen. "That's right," McNally said. "That's the way I see it."

Swearingen ran from the Pittsburgh baseball dugout where the direct line to the press box is located and thrust his arms into the air, signifying touchdown, and becam erupted in Three Rivers Stadium.

"Franco's Italian Army," Harris' rabid Italian-flag waving fan club charged over the dugout onto the field, mobbing Steeler players, and a collective roar rose from more than 50,000 title starved Pittsburgh fans.

Roy Gerela kicked the extra point and then with five seconds left, kicked off. The ball rolled dead in the end zone and Stabler had time only for one long desperation bomb which was batted down by five Steelers.

The victory moved the Steelers making their first playoff appearance in 40 years of NFL competition into Sunday's American Conference title game against the Miami-Cleveland winner. The winner of that one goes to the Super Bowl in Los Angeles.

I didn't see him (Tatum) coming," said Fuqua of the decisive play. "He just blew in and gave me a good lick. I went down and I
